INCORPORATION ACT HINDERED BY TREASURY STAND

Department Wants General Legislation To Assist All Americans Abroad

MAY PASS NEXT MONTH

Shanghai's Envoys Remaining In Washington To Press For Action

Despite the fact that cablegrams have been received in Shanghai that the American Federal Incorporation Bill, H. R. 7204, had failed to pass at this session of Congress, a recent report from Messrs. C. L. Seitz and J. B. Powell, now in Washington as special representatives of American Chambers of Commerce in China, contains the assurance that the measure will be given favorable consideration at the special session to be convened this month or early in April.

The chief difficulties have been in making the members of Congress, and especially the leaders, realise the unique importance of extraterritorial conditions in China and that a special act of Congress is required to bring relief to American merchants here.

Practically every American Chamber of Commerce outside of the United States is clamoring for relief from income taxes and excess profits taxes and this has handicapped the representatives because many members of Congress and the officials of the Treasury Department consider there should be general legislation to assist all American business abroad instead of special legislation affecting American merchants in China only.

The Portland (Oregon) Chamber of Commerce has assigned its secretary to stay in Washington until the measure is either a law or a failure. The National Foreign Trade Council has helped tremendously and the National Chamber in Washington sent out its official endorsement and recommendation to every chamber of commerce in America. It is easy to see the results of efforts during the past two years as practically everybody knows something about the necessity for federal incorporation of American companies in China.

The Bill as now drawn, provides national incorporation with very strict supervision under the authority of the Secretary of Commerce and is to be administered through his representative in China.

It has a friend and supporter in President Harding. The Bill has the combined help of all of the chambers of the Pacific Coast, the Gulf Coast, the Mississippi Valley and the Atlantic Coast.

Mr. H. H. Arnold was recently in Washington and appeared before the Ways and Means Committee. He gave the members detailed information regarding the need of this legislation. The majority of the members now appreciate the necessity of American firms in China being placed on an even footing with their competitors.

The report closes with the remark that Americans in China may rest assured that Washington has a keen interest in their needs and final favorable action may be confidently expected.

London, March 8.—The New York correspondent of the Times understands that President Harding has definitely decided to send seven commissioners, probably headed by Mr. Elihu Root, to London, with a view to ascertaining whether the Allies are willing to agree to the inclusion of the United States in an Association of nations on terms which would definitely exclude any obligation on the part of the United States to guarantee the peace of Europe.

DANCE HALL BARS CLOSED FOR GOOD, GENERAL HO SAYS

Refusal Of Future License Applications Ordered By Defense Commissioner

Official correspondence upon the subject of the passing of Shanghai's once notorious purlieus of wild night life, the Jukong-Szechuen Road district called The Trenches, is given in the current issue of the Municipal Gazette.

An outstanding detail of this correspondence is found in a letter dated February 11 to the Senior Consul from Gen. Ho Feng-lin, Defense Commissioner. Two paragraphs of this that are significant are as follows:

"There bars, being in very truth as you describe them 'undesirable haunts,' I have repeatedly directed the Police Office to put an end to them within a definite time, and I am fully determined to see that this is done.

"I have also directed the Chapei Tax Office that no licenses whatever are to be issued to future applicants in respect of this class of business, which step should lead to its complete suppression."

In a preceding letter from the Senior Consul to General Ho it was stated that 'one great safeguard against such undesirable haunts as The Trenches would be for the Chinese authorities concerned to decline to issue to foreigners licenses for places of entertainment of any kind beyond the Settlement limits unless the applicant in each case produce a certificate of approval under the seal of his Consul."

It is seen in General Ho's reply that so far as dance hall bars are concerned 'no licenses whatever' are to be issued in future.

STAMP FORGERS TO BE SENTENCED BY COURT TODAY

Men Caught In Clever Counterfeiting Here Face Judgment

ASK SEVERE PENALTY

Postal Authorities Press For Exemplary Punishment Of Confessed Offenders

Judgment will be delivered today by Assessor Tenney and Magistrate Yui at the Mixed Court in the case of the two men charged with counterfeiting postage stamps of the Chinese Government, following final evidence given as the prosecution closed yesterday.

The forgery is one of the cleverest ever uncovered in this country and the postal authorities have pressed for a severe sentence to be passed. The plates and a large quantity of the forged stamps were seized when the arrests were made and, though it is believed that others may have been involved in the fraud, the officials think that the prosecution will have a salutary effect in the discouragement of the stamp counterfeiting industry hereabouts.

CLEVER DETECTIVE WORK

Clever detective work, under the guidance of Detective Sergeant J. J. Kilkenny of Central station, and indefatigable effort on the part of the Postal Commissioner and Deputy Postal Commissioner—Messrs. C. H. Shields and F. L. Smith—together with the assistance of a member of the post office staff, are responsible for bringing the forgers to book.

The forgeries came to the attention of the postal authorities about the middle of January, in the following way:

On January 13 a Chinese entered the main post office and approached the employe in charge of the parcels shipping department. He stated that he had important business to talk over with this man. Subsequently he proposed that the employe undertake to dispose of quantities of the spurious stamps. The employe, an old and trusted servant, reported the matter to headquarters. He was given money and told to pretend to fall in with the scheme. This he did, purchasing in the first instance, $70 worth of 30 and 50-cent stamps.

BUY $300 WORTH

The detective force was then called in and set to work. It took $300 of the Post Office money to get the suspects into a position where they could be caught. Finally, however, the employe, with a number of marked notes in his possession, arranged a rendezvous in a lodging house at 140 Foochow Road. He was followed to the place by Chinese Detectives and while the latter guarded the lodging house D. S. Kilkenny descended upon the conference and arrested a man named Wei Tsz-hyang, who was found to be then in possession of the marked money and also to be carrying a parcel in which was found three copper plates engraved for the printing of Chinese stamps of 50-cent denomination, two plates for printing 30 cent stamps and one plate for the printing of 10-cent stamps. There were also in the bundle 77 sheets of unperforated 50-cent stamps, 600 finished 50-cent stamps, 16 sheets of unperforated 30-cent stamps and about 1,500 finished 30-cent stamps.

CALLS PLATES JAPANESE

The prisoner declared that the plates were of Japanese manufacture and said that his only accomplice was a man who had departed for Canton. More careful detective work, however, brought into custody a man named Sung Tsung-tuh, the man who had conducted the negotiations with the postal employe. It was then discovered that both men had previously served sentences in connection with stamp forging cases, the first man arrested having been convicted of being in possession of a stamp perforating machine and the second of having been involved in a previous forgery for which he served three and a half years. Nine men were involved in that case, of whom eight were apprehended, the present accused being one of the principals.

The stamps manufactured in the present instance were such, according to the postal authorities, that only an expert could detect them as being spurious. Marketed in the way the prisoners had intended they could have passed undetected for a long time, as once they were cancelled, detection would have been difficult, if not impossible. The

MASS MEETING AT TOWN HALL TO START DRIVE

Campaign For Funds To Aid Famine Regions Is Here Tomorrow

PEKING RAISES $800,000

National Effort Brings Over $1,125,000 To Date; Local Prospects Bright

With the total drive subscriptions for the whole of China totaling more than $1,250,000 prospects are bright for a very successful campaign. The whole nation is awaiting the results of the Shanghai effort and the committee in charge here is out to equal the results of the rest of the country.

Indications at the present time are favorable and before the close of the week of the drive it is fully anticipated that at least a million and a half will be subscribed.

In the meantime calls for relief in the famine area are insistent. The death toll is increasing daily as shown by the telegrams received from the North. Typhus and pneumonia are breaking out at many points and Peking is preparing to send a number of doctors and nurses equipped with medicinals and preventives to the worst sections in the hope that an epidemic can be averted.

The successful results attending the work of the various committees in other large centers has encouraged the belief that the critical period will be met without any great catastrophe and if the contributions in Shanghai come up to expectations it will enable the famine workers to avert a calamity which might well equal the Great Flood of the Yellow River.

Tomorrow night, commencing at 5:00 o'clock, the big mass meeting in the Town Hall will inaugurate the week of drive for all Shanghai. This hall will hold only 1,000 people and in order that only those who are interested in benevolent work may attend, admission will be by ticket only. These have been distributed by the committee to the various Chambers of Commerce, guilds, street unions and other organisations which are aiding to the famine relief fund.

Peking has telegraphed as follows.

Hankow total now one hundred seventy-five thousand. Peking now over eight hundred thousand. Total for nation well over one million three hundred thousand with many large centers not yet reported. Nation wide interest in Shanghai drive. We are certain your strong organisation will produce splendid results.

The street union of the French Concession, at a meeting held Monday, decided to participate in the famine relief drive and 30 members were appointed to make the necessary preparations. In addition the union decided to create a special department for the raising of funds for famine aid.

UNEMPLOYED IN GLASGOW TRY TO HECKLE PRINCE

Police Break Up Demonstration; Royal Visitor Sorry For Jobless

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 8.—The Prince of Wales today received the freedom of the city of Glasgow. An attempt by unemployed to hold a demonstration outside St. Andrews was a fiasco.

Acknowledging the freedom, the Prince of Wales said that he did not come to see the Industries Fair but to see the people. After eulogising Glasgow's achievements in the war, the Prince said that they were all trying to get back peace conditions, but these words must be prefixed with the word "happy." It was impossible to attain them until all sections of the community were satisfied.

His Royal Highness continued. "If we can give and take sufficiently there are no difficulties that cannot be overcome. We must not be too impatient. The presence of this horrible epidemic of unemployment, with its consequence of suffering, worries me a great deal.

"It upsets me particularly to know that it affects thousands of men who fought overseas or worked at home for victory and I want you, Lord Provost, to assure them that I am thinking of them in their trouble. My earnest hope is that conditions will soon improve."

CHINESE GIRLS ON SILK MISSION MAKE HIT IN N.Y.

Dress, Skill And Beauty Of Oriental Reelers Appeal To Show Visitors

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, March 5.—News comes from New York that China's Silk Mission arrived there in ample time for the International Silk Show, held at the Grand Central Palace of that City.

With the party, which has been lavishly entertained by various organisations ever since its arrival in New York, are three Chinese girls, said to be the fastest silk reelers in China, whose demonstration of their skill, together with their Oriental dress and comeliness attracted considerable attention at the silk exposition. The delegation while in New York stopped at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

The Silk Mission, consisting of eleven prominent silk representatives including Mr. C. Y. Chiu, former secretary to China's Ministry of Commerce, and a Columbia College man, went abroad to discover just why the silks manufactured in China are not adaptable to America's trade. It is recognised that to supply that market the manufacturers here must install more speedy and modern machinery, but before so doing it is considered essential to learn what other changes are necessary.

Mr. H. C. Foo, of the Autung Silk Association, is said to have declared his intention to purchase machinery while in the United States for installation in the model factory planned by his company.

Harding Says U.S. Is Eager To Aid World Recuperation

President, In Inaugural Speech, Declares Willingness To Help, But Insists Country Will Have No Restrictions On Exercise Of Its Own Free Will

(Reuter's Service)

Earlier despatches to THE CHINA PRESS brought parts of President Harding's inaugural address. The speech is herewith presented in full.

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, March 4.—The following is the full text of President Harding's inaugural address to Congress:

My countrymen, when one surveys the world about him after the great storm, noting the marks of destruction and yet rejoicing in the ruggedness of the things that withstood its terrors, if he is an American, he breathes the clarified atmosphere with a strange mingling of regret and new hope. We have seen world passion spend its folly, but we contemplate our Republic firm, and hold our civilisation secure. Liberty within the law and civilisation are inseparable and although both were threatened, we find them now secure and there comes to Americans the profound assurance that our representative Government is the highest expression and surest guarantee of both.

Standing in this presence, mindful of the solemnity of this occasion, feeling the emotions which no one may know until he has the great weight of responsibility for himself, I must utter my belief in the living inspiration of the Founding Fathers. Surely there must have been God's intent in the making of this New World Republic of ours. It is an organic law which had but one ambiguity, and we saw that correction effected in the baptism of sacrifice and blood, with the Union maintained, the nation supreme and its concord inspiring. We have seen the world rivet its hopeful gaze on the great truths which the Founders taught. We have seen civil, humane and religious life verified and glorified. In the beginning period the Old World scoffed at our experiments. Today our foundations of political and social belief stand an unshaken and unprejudical inheritance to ourselves in an inspiring example of freedom and civilisation to all mankind.

NO ENTANGLEMENTS

The record of our Republic materially and spiritually in itself proves the wisdom of the inherited policy of non-involvement in Old World affairs. Confident of our ability to work out our own destiny and jealously guarding our right to do so, we ask no part in directing the destiny of the Old World. We do not mean to be entangled. We will accept no responsibility, except as our own conscience and judgment in each instance may determine. Our eyes will never be blinded to developing menace, our ears never deaf to the call of civilisation.

We recognise the New Order in the world with the closer contacts which progress has wrought, and we sense the feeling of the human heart for fellowship, fraternity and co-operation. We crave friendship and harbor no hate. But America, our America, the America built on the foundation laid by the inspired Pilgrims, can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments, nor assume any economic obligations or subject our decisions to

ST. PATRICK'S DAY OBSERVANCE TO BE INFORMAL

No Official Celebration Is Decision At St. Patrick's Society Meeting

No formal official celebration of St. Patrick's Day on March 17 will take place in Shanghai this year. This decision was reached yesterday at the annual general meeting of St. Patrick's Society of Shanghai which was held at the Palace Hotel.

There was little discussion of question of the celebration of the holiday and when it came up for discussion in the course of the meeting no opposition was voiced to the proposal of Capt. P. A. Miller who advanced the view that any observance of the holiday this year should be carried out only by individuals by reason of the present state of affairs in Ireland. When the motion that no offered was presented it was passed without dissenting vote.

Mr. D. P. Grimith, President of the Society, presided at the meeting and in the election of officers he and Mr. J. J. Dunne, Vice President, both were re-elected. The new committee that was chosen, with the President and Vice President, is composed of Messrs. R. B. Moorhead, Capt. P A. Miller, W. W. Ward, H. P. Wilkinson, S. W. Wolfe and E. H. Lynch.

The Chairman in opening his remarks said he was glad to say there had been no deaths in the membership of the Society in the past year and went on to add that the organisation's best thanks are due to Mr. L. P. O'Driscoll, Honorary Secretary, and Mr. R. B. Moorhead, Honorary Treasurer, for the energy displayed in the Society's interests. He voiced appreciation also of the services of Mr. K. Begdon, Honorary Piper.

"I feel," he continued, "I cannot let the occasion pass without referring to the present deplorable state of our country, but let us hope that the time is not far distant when peace, prosperity and brotherly harmony will again prevail and that reason and common sense will assert themselves to the restoration of law and order, to the revival of her industries, to the development of her resources, and to loyalty to the Empire whose glorious traditions she has helped to build up.

"In union lies strength; in disunion lies disintegration, demorilisation and weakness."

The financial condition of the organisation was found to be in a flourishing state and the report and accounts were adopted without discussion.

ALLIES AIM TO WORK FOR PROSPERITY OF TEUTONS

Gen. Degoutte Reassures People Of Occupied Cities

U.S. TO STAY OUT

Other Towns Entered By French, Belgians And British

(Reuter's Service)

Mayence, March 8.—General Degoutte has issued a proclamation to the inhabitants of Duesseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort, declaring that the Allies are compelled to occupy these towns as guarantees, since the German Government does not intend to fulfil its treaty obligations. The occupation, it states, is in no way hostile to the population, and no obstacle will be placed in the way of the economic life of the region.

The Allied authorities are ready to help to improve the situation of the workers, and particularly, to insure a food supply. They intend to make a regime of liberty and order prevail and thus to develop prosperity.

Washington, March 8.—The State Department announces that the American army of occupation along the Rhine front will not cooperate with the Allies' advanceguard in the occupation of other German towns.

Mayence, March 8.—The French and Belgian troops occupied Duisburg at noon today. The Rhine flotilla has occupied Ruhrort.

Berlin, March 8.—In the course of a speech delivered to a full house in the Reichstag, and which was interspersed with cheers, the German Chancellor, Herr Fehrenbach, described the penalties to be imposed on Germany as an act of violence.

"The Allied conditions are to be applied by force," he stated, therefore they have nothing to do with the principles of right."

Herr Fehrenbach declared that Germany, including the parts about to be struck by the Allies' measures, was united in its determination to endure. Like Dr. von Simons, he was willing to leave the verdict to history which "will have something to say not only in regard to the guilt for the war but also in regard to the dictates of Versailles."

AMBASSADOR LEAVES

The German Ambassador at London is leaving for Berlin tonight, in response to a summons from Berlin, to explain the situation.

London, March 8.—In contrast with the unanimity of the British press, including the liberal section of it, in ridiculing Dr. von Simons' first offer, it is worthy of not that the Manchester Guardian, the Westminster Gazette and the Star today echo the strong language used by the Daily News this morning in denouncing the Allies' decision to refuse to give Germany a breathing space, as they say that capitulation to France's "policy of revenge" is opposed to the British national interests because it involves possibilities of Allied friction.

The sanctions these papers assert are calculated to defeat the industrial recovery of Germany which Mr. Lloyd George has hitherto maintained was essential to peace and the restoration of trade.

All however declare that the tactless and inept speeches of Dr. von Simons, who is in the grip of the Nationalists, contributed to a general exhibition of bankrupt statesmanship.

In conversation with Reuter's representative, Dr. von Simons remarked: "We hope to return soon. Never say die!"

London, March 9.—The Daily News Berlin correspondent states that the departure for Berlin of Dr. von Sthamer, the German Ambassador in London, and also that of the Ambassador in Paris and the Minister in Brussels, is in the nature of a recall, owing to the German indignation at the new Allied decision in regard to the occupation of further German territory, and does not mean a rupture of relations. The Chief Secretaries will undertake the Ambassadors' duties during their absence.

ALLEGE JEALOUSY LED TO SHOOTING IN WARPULA CASE

Defense Claims Complainant Threatened Accused Before Shooting Occurred

The defense countered with allegations of jealousy and threats on the part of the husband complainant yesterday when hearings were resumed in the Mixed Court of the case in which Waino Victor Warpula is charged with the attempted murder of Mr. Jensen at the Montford Hotel, Chaoufoong Road, last month.

On the resumption of the hearing evidence of Warpula's arrest was given by Sergeant G. Sadler of Hongkew police station, who searched him on his being brought to the station and found three live cartridges in his pocket. The prisoner was drunk at the time, the officer testified, but fairly sensible in some things. Miss O. Tellifsen, daughter of the proprietress of the lodging house, told of calling the police, and Detective Inspector Prosser testified regarding the bullet marks found in the house, after which the case for the prosecution closed.

Mr. J. B. Davies, appearing for the defendant, then addressed the bench, and stated that his client had been on very friendly terms with the Jensens and that for some reason or other the complainant had become extremely jealous of him. On the objection of Mr. P. C. Faithful, prosecutor, that there was no proof of this, Mr. Davies said that he had proof and was prepared to call witnesses. The attorney for the defense stated that three weeks prior to the shooting Jensen had made a remark that he was going to get the defendant and Warpula had received a letter from Mrs. Jensen warning him that Mr. Jensen was jealous of him.

Counsel stated that Warpula, on the evening in question, had gone with friends to the Savoy Hotel for a game of cards and had gone home at midnight, ordering a bottle of beer when he arrived. Without rapping, counsel stated, Mr. Jensen had entered his client's room with a pocket knife in his hand and had made a threatening remark. Warpula was standing in the dressing gown, his volunteer's rifle was at hand and a clip of cartridges. He had placed a blank cartridge in the weapon as a warning to the complainant to leave the room and had fired into the fireplace. When the loaded cartridges were fired, counsel contended the gun was fired at an angle precluding the hitting of anyone, and if a shot of Warpula's standing had really intended to hit there would not have been any miss.

Mr. Davies was on the point of calling the prisoner to give evidence when the court was adjourned until next Wednesday.

plates from which they were struck are copper plates, photograpic and acid-etched, the 50-cent plate carrying a block of 15 stamps and the 30-cent plate a block of 20. The 10-cent plate was badly done and no stamps of this denomination were offered.

ASK SEVERE SENTENCE

In closing the case for the prosecution Mr. J. G. Priestwood pressed for an exemplary sentence. His clients, the postal authorities, he said, regarded the case as one of extreme gravity. China being so vast a country and it being so simple for forgers to market their product outside of Shanghai where there was not the control that there is here. Leniency in such matters, he contended, would mean a breakdown of the service. Counsel would make no reference to the people suspected of having made the plates, but he would state that such counterfeiting as the present was exceedingly difficult to detect and he asked the Court to pass severe sentence, both as a punishment for the accused and as a deterrant to others.

Mr. P. M. Linebarger, appearing for the second accused, asked that the Court put the matter under further remand and try and obtain assistance from his client to run down other members of the gang, and in the event of his client turning state's evidence to take this into cognisance.

Mr. Priestwood replied that the matter had already been under remand for over a month and no assistance had been forthcoming from the accused.

Branch Health Offices Resume Vaccinations

Settlement's Health Continues Good Says Report Which Warns Against Dread Pneumonic Plague

The general mortality rate in the International Settlement continues to be low, according to the report of the Municipal Health Officer for February. The report continues.

"The incidence of scarlet fever has been remarkably slight considering its usual association with Diphtheria as to prevalence.

"There were a few cases of smallpox, mostly imported during the incubation period. In view of this, vaccination at the Branch Health Offices was resumed shortly after the Chinese New Year holiday.

SITUATION IMPROVES

"There was no further development of the plague position after finding two infected rats in the neighborhood of the wharves last December. A large number of rats have been examined in the Laboratory from ships gassed by the Port Health Authority, but none were found plague-infected.

"Plague in the most deadly pneumonic form has again shown itself as a menace from the North carried by railways and roads by the big human traffic. The vast sandy wastes beyond the northern border of China may be considered for practical purposes a potential endemic plague-infected area, where plague infection is ever present somewhere or other among certain rodents, leading to a danger of human infection.

"Previously stress was laid on the tropical home of plague, mainly bubonic; but the menace from the North is more sinister, threatening and elusive.

SINISTER MENACE

"Pneumonic plague is the most deadly of all diseases and when once introduced infects in mass like influenza, but every case of pneumonic plague is fatal.

"On the evidence at our disposal, a serious outbreak of pneumonic plague in Shanghai is unlikely, but were cases to come down early in the winter there is more than a possibility of great danger. Up to now, by the time cases get as far south as Shantung the advent of warmer weather discounts the danger."

Make Presentation To Police Officer

Popular Members Of Force Leaving For Home This Week

Presentations were made yesterday to several popular members of the police force who will shortly sail for home on long leave.

At Central station yesterday morning Sub-Inspector W. Abbot and Detective Sergeant W. J. MacDermott were the recipients of suitably inscribed gold wrist watches from their comrades at that station, Chief Inspector Vaughan making the presentation with a very happy little speech of appreciation for their services and of good wishes for their vacation period.

Last evening there were further presentations to Inspector P. W. Reeves, of Hongkew, Inspector Peck, of the Finger Print Department, and Detective Sergeant MacDermott, the former two receiving leather trunks and the latter a handsome leather suit case. Detective Inspector A. Eek made the presentation, to which the recipients made appropriate replies.

Sergeant MacDermott sails today on the Porthos, accompanied by Sergeants R. Shellswell and C. J. Bull and Mr. F. George of the Revenue Department, S.M.C. Inspectors Reeves and Peck sail Sunday and Sub-Inspector Abbot will leave next Monday.

Mixed Court Jottings

The new traffic court will have its first session at the Mixed Court this afternoon, Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Tsang presiding.

A widow charged with running a morphia den at 30 Hwakee Road was sentenced to three months' imprisonment by the Mixed Court yesterday. Detective Sub-Inspector Prosser, who made the raid, testified that four persons had been found in the place, two injecting morphia for the others. The morphia was sold by the proprietress at 6 cents per packet and the injecting was done by the customers themselves, under her supervision. Three syringes and a quantity of the drug were seized and ordered confiscated.

The manager and accountant of a match, oil and soap concern known as the Say Chong Kai Foh Kee, appeared yesterday on the charge of misappropriating the company's funds and destroying account books. It is thought that the amount involved is about Tls. 6,000. The case was remanded one week, defendants to be released on $1,000 cash security.

Kaiping Miners Out Following Dismissal Of Chinese Official

The coal miners of the Kaiping mines have gone on strike following a difference between a Mr. Li, the Chinese manager, and one of the foreign engineers and have presented a list of demands upon which their return to work is made contingent. The Chinese manager resigned following a dispute with the engineer and the men walked out with him, according to reports received here.

The demand of the strikers include:

(1)—A wage increase of approximately 400 percent—the men alleging that their present pay of from 10 to 20 cents per day is entirely inadequate:

(2)—That Mr. Li, as "the only humane employe in the management," be restored to his position.

(3)—Better treatment of workmen.

(4)—Gratuities to the men.

(5)—That the subsidy for kerosene and fuel for the heating of living quarters be renewed.

(6)—That baths, refectories and other conveniences be created for the workmen.

(7)—That certain of the surveyors be dismissed from the company's employ.

The strikers declare in their petition that they would rather die than return to work without the concession of the demands which they have made.

any other than our own authority. I am sure our own people will not misunderstand nor the world misconstrue. We have no thought to impede the paths to closer relationship. We wish to promote understanding. We want to do our part in making offensive warfare so hateful that Governments and peoples who resort to it must prove the righteousness of their game or stand as outlaws before the bar of civilisation.

We are ready to associate ourselves with the nations of the world, great and small, for conference, for counsel, to seek the expressed views of world opinion, to recommend views, to approximate to disarmament and relieve the crushing burdens of military and naval establishments. We elect to participate in the suggested plans for mediation, conciliation, and arbitration, and would gladly join in that expressed conscience of which seeks to clarify and write the laws of international relationship, and establish a world court for the disposition of such justiciable questions as the nations are agreed to submit thereafter.

ARE READY TO UNITE

In expressing aspirations, in seeking practical plans, in translating Humanity's new concept of righteousness and justice and its hatred of war into recommended action, we are ready most heartily to unite. Every commitment must be in concordance with our national sovereignty.

Super-Government is contrary to everything we cherish, and can have no sanction by our Republic. This is not selfishness. It is sanctity. It is not aloofness, it is security. It is not suspicion of others, it is political inheritance to the things which made us what we are. Today, better than ever before, we know the aspirations of humankind and share them. We have come to a new realisation of our place in the world and have appraisal of our nation by the world. The unselfishness of these United States is a thing proved.

Our devotion to peace for ourselves and for the world is well-established. Our concern for preserved civilisation has had its impassioned and heroic expression. There will be no failure today or tomorrow to resist the popular will. The success of our popular government rests wholly upon the correct interpretation of the deliberate intelligence of the popular will of America, in questions of a suggested change of national policy.

America is ready to encourage, eager to initiate, anxious to participate in any seemly program likely to lessen the probability of war and promote that brotherhood of mankind which must be God's highest conception of human relationship because we cherish ideals of peace and justice. Because we appraise international comity and helpful relationship no less highly than any people of the world, aspire to a high place in the moral leadership of civilisation and we hold and maintain America, the proven Republic, the unshaken temple of representative democracy, to be not only an inspiration and example but the highest agency of strength and goodwill for promoting accord on both continents.

UNDERSTANDING NEEDED

Mankind needs a world-wide conception of understanding. It is needed among individuals, among people, among Governments, and it will inaugurate an era of good feeling to mark the birth of a New Order. In such understanding, men will strive confidently for the promotion of their better relationship and nations will promote the comity, so essential to peace. Trade ties bind closer. We must understand that these ties of trade bind nations in the closest intimacy, and none may receive except as he gives.

We mean to promote enlarged activities and seek expanded confidence. Perhaps we can make no more helpful contributions by example than to prove the Republican capacity to emerge from the wreckage of war. While the world's enduring travail did not leave us devastated lands nor isolated cities, left no gaping wounds, nor breasts filled with hate, it did involve us in a delirium of expenditure, in currency and credits unbalanced, and disturbed relationships.

While it caused our portion of hateful selfishness, it also revealed the heart of America as sound, and fearless, and beating in confidence unfailing amid it all. It revealed the riveted gaze of all civilisation to the unselfishness and righteousness of representative democracy, where our freedom never has made offensive warfare, never has sought territorial aggrandisation through force, never has turned to the arbitrament of arms, until reason had been exhausted. When the Governments have sanctioned the pursuit of peace and have practiced it, I believe the last sorrow and final sacrifice of international warfare will have been written.

Our supreme tasks are the resumption of our onward normal way, reconstruction, readjustment and restoration.

NO NATIONAL PREJUDICE

If it will lighten the spirit and add to the resolution with which we take up the task, then let me repeat for our nation—We shall give no people just or sufficient cause to make war on us. We hold no national prejudice. We entertain no spirit of revenge. We do not hate. We do not covet. We dream of no conquest, nor boast of armed prowess.

If, despite this attitude, war is again forced upon us, I earnestly hope a way may be found which will unify for individual and collective strength and consecrate all America materially and spiritually, body and soul, to national defence. I vision the ideal Republic where every man and woman is called under the flag for assignment to duty for whatever service, military or civil, the individual is most fitted, where we may call for universal service every plant, agency, or facility, all in the sublime sacrifice for country and not one penny of any profit shall enure to the benefit of private individuals, corporations, or combinations, but all above the normal shall flow into the defence chest of the nation.

There is something in heredity wrong, something out of accordance with the ideals of representative democracy, when one portion of our citizenship turns its activities to create gain amid defensive war, while another is fighting, sacrificing or dying for national preservation. Unity of spirit and purpose, a new confidence and consecration which would make our defence impregnable, our triumph assured—then we should have little or no disorganisation of our economic, industrial and commercial system at home, no staggering war-debt, no swollen fortunes to flout the sacrifice of our soldiers, no excuse for sedition, no pitiable slackers, outrages of treason.

Enmity and jealousy would have no soil for their menacing developments and revolution would be without pressure, which endangers it. Regret for the mistakes of yesterday must not, however, blind us to the tasks of today. War never left such an aftermath. There has been staggering loss of life and measureless wastage of material.

NATIONS SEEK STABILITY

Nations are still groping for return to stable ways; discouraging indebtedness confronts us like all the war-torn nations and these obligations must be provided for. No civilisation can survive repudiation. We can lessen the abnormal expenditures, and we will. We can strike at war-taxation and we must face the grim necessity with full knowledge of the task to be solved, and we must proceed with the full realisation that no statute enacted by men can repeal the inexorable laws of nature.

Our most dangerous tendency is to expect too much of government, and at the same time do for it, too, little. We contemplate the immediate task of putting our Republic in order. We need rigid and yet sane economy combined with fiscal justice and it must be attended by individual prudence.

The business world reflects the disturbance of war's reaction. Herein flows the life-blood of material existence. The economic mechanism is intricate and its parts inter-dependent and it has suffered the shocks and jars incident to abnormal demands, credit inflations and price upheavals. The normal balances have been impaired. The channels of distribution have been clogged. The relations of labor and management have been strained.

We must seek the readjustment with care and courage. Our people must give and take. Prices must reflect the receding fever of war activities. Perhaps never shall we know the old level of wages, because war invariably readjusts compensation and the necessaries of life will show their inseparable relationship; but we must strive for the normal. All the penalties will not be light nor evenly distributed; there is no way of making them so. There is no instant step from disorder to order. We must face a condition of grim reality, charge off our losses and start afresh. It is the oldest lesson of civilisation. I would like the Government to do all it can to mitigate them. In understanding, in mutuality of interest, in concern for the common good, our tasks will be solved. No altered system will work a miracle. Any wild experiment will only add to the confusion. Our best assurance lies in efficient administration of our proven system.

WILL AID BUSINESS

The forward course of the business people is unmistakeable. People are turning from destruction to production. Industry has scented the changed order and our own people are turning to resume their normal onward way. The call is for productive America to go on. I know that Congress and the Administration will favor every wish for Government policy to aid resumption and encourage continued progress.

I speak for administration efficiency, for lightened tax burdens, for sound commercial practices, for adequate credit facilities, for sympathetic concern for all agricultural problems, for the omission of unnecessary interference of governments with business, for an end to government experiments in business, and for more efficient business in government administration. With all of this we must attend to mindfulness of the human side of all activities, so that social, industrial and economic justice will be squared with the purposes of a righteous people.

With the nation-wide introduction of womanhood into our political life, we may count upon her intuition, her refinement, her intelligence and her influence, to exalt the social order. We may count upon her exercise of the full privileges, and performance of the duties of citizenship, to speed the attainment of the highest state practical for industrial peace. Our fundamental law recognises no class, no group, in legislation or administration.

The supreme aspiration is the common weal. Humanity hungers for international peace, and we crave it with all mankind. My most reverent prayer for America is for industrial peace, with its rewards widely and generally distributed amid the inspirations of equal opportunity. No-one justly may deny the equality of opportunity which made us what we are. We have mistaken unpreparedness to embrace it for a challenge of the reality, and due concern for making all citizens fit for participation will give added strength of citizenship and magnify our achievements. If revolution insists upon overturning established order, let other people make the tragic experience. There is no place for it in America.

When the world war threatened civilisation, we pledged our resources and gave our lives for its preservation, and when revolution threatened we unfurled the flag of law and order. . . . Ours is a constitutional freedom, where the popular will is the law supreme, and minorities are sacredly protected. Our revisions, reformations and evolutions represent a deliberate judgment and an orderly progress, and a means to cure our ails, but never to destroy or to permit destruction of our force.

I had rather submit our industrial controversies to the conference table in advance, than to a settlement table after conflict and suffering. The earth is thirsty for the cup of good-will. Understanding is its fountain source. I would like to acclaim an era of good feeling, amid unity, prosperity and all the blessings of such.

"It has been proved again and again that we cannot, while throwing our markets open to the world, maintain an American standard of living and opportunity, and hold our industrial eminence in such equalised competition. Preserved American standards require our richer production, which ought to be reflected in our tariffs on imports today, as never before, when people are seeking trade resources and expansion. We must adjust our tariffs to the new order.

MUST HAVE SHIPS, HE SAYS

We seek participation in the world's exchange because therein lies our way to widened influence, and the triumphs of peace. We know full well we cannot sell when we do not buy; and we cannot sell successfully where we do not carry. Opportunity is calling not alone for the restoration, but for a new era in production, transportation and trade. We shall answer it best by meeting the demand of a surplusing home market, by genius and efficiency, to carry our cargoes in American bottoms to the ports of the world.

In an America of homes we would not have an America living within and for herself alone, but we would have her self-reliant, independent, and ever nobler, stronger and richer. Believing in our higher standard, reared through constitutional liberty and maintaining opportunity, we invite the world to the same heights. . . . Common welfare is the goal of our national endeavors. Wealth is not identical to welfare. It ought to be its friendliest agency.

"There never can be equality of rewards or possession as long as the human plane contains varied talents, and differing degree of industry and thrift, but ours ought to be a country free from great blotches of distressed poverty.

We ought to find a way to guard against the perils and penalties of unemployment. We want an America of homes, illumed with hope and happiness, where mothers are freed from the necessity for long hours of toil. . . . We want the cradle of American childhood rocked under conditions so wholesome and so hopeful that no blight may touch it in its development, and we want to proivde that no selfish interests, no material necessity, no lack of opportunity, shall prevent the gaining of that education so essential to the best citizenship.

There is no short cut to the making of these ideals into grand realities. The world has witnessed again and again the futility and mischief of ill-contrived remedies for social and economic disorders. But we are mindful today as never before of the friction of modern industrialism, and we must learn its causes and reduce its evil consequences by sober and tested methods where genius, made for great possibilities, justice and happiness, must reflect a greater common welfare.

Service is the supreme commitment of life. I would rejoice to acclaim the era of the golden rule, and crown it with the autocracy of service. I predict an administration wherein all the agencies of government are called to serve, and ever promote an understanding of government purely as an expression of the popular will."

Sores from Wrist to Elbow

"Completely Healed"

Our portrait is of Mr. John Kidd, of 17, Mill Lane, Kilmarnock, Scotland, who writes:—"My right arm became covered with sores from wrist to elbow and was useless for over two years. I tried different ointments and so-called cures, but they never did me any good. Then I tried your 'Clarke's Blood Mixture,' and the sores soon began to heal up and power began to come back to my arm, so I persevered with the Mixture, and after having four bottles am glad to say my arm is completely healed up and I have now the full use of it." In a further letter over a twelvemonth later Mr. Kidd writes: "I have had no return of my complaint; my arm is still as sound as a bell and never troubles me in the least."

INDUSTRIAL MEN HERE FOR SURVEY

L. A. Osborne, Westinghouse Head And L. M. Keeler, Of Big Machine Co., Arrive

Two figures prominent in the industrial world in the United States who are visitors for the time in Shanghai are Mr. L. A. Osborne, President of the Westinghouse Electric International Company, and Vice President of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and Mr. L. M. Keeler, head of the Whitin Machine Company of Whitinsville, Massachusetts, one of the largest manufacturers of cotton textile machinery in America. Both are in the Far East to survey conditions in connection with their business.

The industries named are represented here by the firm of Gaston, Williams and Wigmore as agents. Mr. Osborne said yesterday that the Company he heads will open a headquarters for China in Shanghai at once and this new establishment will work in conjunction with the established agency. He said his visit presaged no particular industrial expansion in any particular field in China, but added that the Westinghouse companies are taking active steps to enlarge the scope of their activities in the Far East.

Business conditions were depressed in the United States, he said, when he sailed two months ago and he added that a general gradual liquidation touching labor as well as commercial interests would have to come about before affairs again are adjusted. He mentioned a year as the probable period necessary for the change.

Mr. Keeler's trip to the Far East, he said, was occasioned largely by his desire personally to look after requirements of mill men to whom his company recently has shipped a large amount of spinning machinery. He is also providing for the handling of increasing business which he predicts the future has in prospect.

The Whitin Machine Works has already shipped spinning machinery worth more than $7,000,000 to the Orient, a part of which went to Japan. An average per month of a unit of 10,000 spindles is being delivered to the various large spinning companies.

Mr. Keeler is also director and special representative of the Textile Exhibitors Association and special representative of the World's Cotton Conference.

After spending a few days in Shanghai Mr. Osborne, who is accompanied by his son, will proceed north to Peking and go thence through Korea back to Japan before sailing for America.

School Question Again Presented To Tokio Peers

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, March 9.—An influential section of the House of Peers, numbering 131, being dissatisfied with the attitude of the Government in regard to the question of the status of schools, brought up a second resolution on the subject today. The Government will be expected to improve the situation and to discharge its grave responsibilities."

The resolution will probably be debated on the 11th inst., and is likely to produce a critical political situation.

CALIFORNIA U. BASEBALL MEN SAIL IN APRIL

Squad Leaving For Far East Early Next Month From San Francisco

STANFORD COMES LATER

Palo Alto Collegians To Join Berkeley Team At Tokio In June

The University of California baseball team, with 19 men making up the squad, will sail from San Francisco next month for a Summer tour of Japan, China and the Philippines and the Leland Stanford University baseball players will leave the United States in May, joining the California men in Tokio early in June. The news comes from Elwood Martin, Graduate manager of Stanford. He says that Stanford will not leave the Far East until late in August while the California players are returning to San Francisco a month earlier.

This is the first definite news received here that California is to send its baseball team to the Far East to play against Japanese college nines and other teams and as the nineteen men are leaving America in April, opportunity is offered the local baseball authorities to get the collegians here late in May or early in June for the Olympic Games. Action must be prompt and must be taken in conjunction with Japanese authorities for the best of Japan's baseball players will be here playing against Chinese and Filipino teams for the championship of the Far East.

Mr. Martin states that California is to play at least 20 games in the Far East but makes no mention of the team coming to Shanghai. Japan, Manchuria, the Philippines and, "possibly Honolulu" are given as fields for play. Shanghai, Peking or Tientsin are evidently not figured and it believes the Shanghai Baseball Club committee to start the [illegible].

From Martin's statement there [illegible] that the California team is to tour Japan until Stanford arrives in June. This means that while Japan, China and the Philippines are battling here in the biggest athletic event in the history of the Far East, California and Stanford are down to play exhibition games and meet inferior Japanese teams until the Japan baseball representatives to the Olympics have returned to Tokio.'

THE LOCAL SITUATION

Incidentally the Shanghai Amateur Baseball Club has $282.51 with which to start the season and this will not be augmented until early in May as there will be no campaign for members until April, according to the committee, the latter deciding that the drive for members should come at the same time the Far Eastern Championship games people will be around selling tickets and everyone's attention will be taken up with the Olympics.

However, here is how the club stands financially, according to the statement issued by the retiring secretary-treasurer, John S. Potter.

JAPANESE DIET MAY RECOGNISE OLYMPIC TEAM

Resolution Asks Support For Athletes To Come Here In May

Mr. Hatoyama and Mr. Maeda, with the support of 44 other members of the Seiyukai, have introduced a resolution in the Japanese Diet demanding the recognition of the participation of the Japanese athletes in the Far East Olympic Games and similar international events as a national affair. Speaking to a reporter of the Asahi, Mr. Maeda said:

"I can not understand why the Japanese Government does not take an interest in sending Japanese champions to the Olympic games which are to be held in Shanghai shortly. This indifference of the Government becomes more inexplicable when it is considered that there are about 100 Japanese champions to participate in the games. Foreign governments are becoming increasingly interested as is shown by the fact that the German Government has established an athletic University."

Japan To Have School For Baseball Players

Is Beginning Of Movement For Establishing Professional League In The Empire

Japan is to have a school for the training of baseball players with the hope that it will lead to the establishing of a professional league for Japan.

The institution is to be located in Tokio and will have among its principal patrons Viscount Takeda and several other prominent business men.

The school according to a statement attributed by the Jiji to Mr. Takeda, is called for by the universal interest being displayed throughout Japan for the great American sport. American instructors will be employed and the number of students will at first be limited to 100. These students after receiving six months of training will then be sent to America for the final instructions that will give Japan a nucleus for the formation of a professional league.

Coach Of American Crews Meets Candidates Monday When Training Will Start

Yankees Going In Strong For International Regatta To Be Held In May; Sailor And Sauer To Act As Trainers; Facilities Offered Green Men

Training of American crews for the International regatta to be held here in May will start next Monday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock when Coach H. P. Sailor will meet all candidates. At a meeting held yesterday Sailor was elected coach and Bill Sauer was chosen acting captain. Neither Sailor nor Sauer will row in the American crews but will train the men. But one other officer was made at the meeting, the men voting to name F. W. Schlobohm as secretary. Schlobohm will look after the clerical work, and with others is to recruit candidates for the boats.

Some 24 names have been secured and a personal canvass will be made of these men. Others interested in rowing or who desire to work out for the boats are asked to send their names to Schlobohm, at the Central Garage, or to the Sporting Editor.

The coaches and those interested want it made known that every man who trains will have a chance to make a boat if he can show the stuff. No men will be chosen until the candidates are all seen in action and then the selection of the American representatives will rest solely with the coaches. Every facility will be afforded green men to train.

Captains of the boats will be selected by the crews and Sauer's appointment as acting captain only means that he will be in charge of men desiring to train.

Among those who were at yesterday's session were Erickson and Schlobohm, who have been training all winter and are in the pink of condition; Edwards, who did some rowing at Harvard; Acting Captain Sauer, Core, Wythe, James and Emmens.

New York Yanks Plan For New Home

The New York American baseball club has completed plans for the building of a $2,000,000 stadium on the north bank of the Harlem river, in the northern part of the city, Colonel T. L. Houston, part owner of the club, announced. The site for the new home of the Yankees will be in East 161st street. Plans for the new stadium call for a design similar to the Yale bowl at New Haven, and it will provide a seating capacity of 75,000. It is hoped to have it completed in time for dedication at the opening of the 1922 season.

Long Bat Practice For Major Leaguers

Visiting clubs of the National League will be allowed thirty minutes for batting practice this season, instead of twenty as in 1920.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."
J. A. BOARMAN, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

The Joke They Played on Isadora Duncan's Brother

Two Happy Runaway Days as a Real Boy Had His Son Menalkas, but When the Police Brought Him Home with His Greek Locks Cut Short and in the Place of His Classic Robe His First Pair of Pants---Well, Even Ancient Athens Never Heard Such Lamentations!

Menalkas as He Is Described When He Ran Away.

And Menalkas as it Is Said He Looked When He Came Back.

PARIS, Jan. 14.

OF course, everybody knows Isadora Duncan, the American girl who does Greek dances. Isadora makes her living very prettily and gracefully wearing a Greek flowing robe without shoes, corsets or much of anything in the way of clothing. Isadora Duncan lives and dresses very nearly the way she imagines Greek women did five hundred years before Christ was born.

Isadora has a brother named Raymond Duncan. Brother Raymond lives in Paris and he also makes a living out of the same Greek idea. Raymond Duncan walks through the streets of Paris with long hair and beard and a Greek robe. He wears Greek sandals on his bare feet. Brother Raymond has an ancient Greek loom and weaves cloth like the poor unfortunate Greeks did centuries ago, who hadn't anything better.

Raymond is married and has a son whom he named Menalkas Duncan—a good Greek name. Menalkas is now fifteen years old and his father has always kept him in Greek robes, bare feet and sandals and long hair.

Poor Menalkas! What red-blooded American boy of fifteen would stand for being made a guy of in this way?

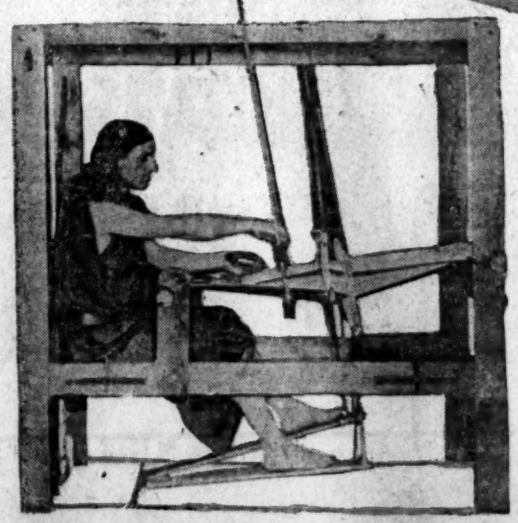
When Menalkas was a baby it did not matter what his father made him wear. But as the boy got old enough to see that he was the laughing stock of everybody but his father and mother he resented such nonsense.

"Father can make a monkey of himself if he wants to and fool around and do things the way they did 2,500 years ago before they knew any better, but that's no reason why he should make a fool of me."

And then an unexpected thing happened.

Suddenly the poor boy was emancipated. A sympathetic friend who realized the horror of that poor boy's life intervened—a friend who had been a boy himself once and knew what a terrible thing it was for a fifteen-year-old boy to venture out on the street and run the gauntlet of jokes and jibes and insults of all the other boys as they pointed to his flowing robe and asked him why he didn't wear pants; as they pointed to his naked feet and sandals and inquired why they didn't buy him some shoes, and as they laughed at his flowing locks and asked him why he didn't get a haircut.

Suddenly Menalkas disappeared from home. The man who intervened in the misery of Menalkas's life took the unhappy boy to his own home and then took him to a barber and had his hair cut, threw away his funny Greek robes and bought him a suit of clothes with long pants.



Papa Duncan at His Ancient Greek Hand Loom.

Then the boy was taken to a shoe store and bought a pair of modern shoes. And then, two days later, this friend returned the boy to his home—but Menalkas was no longer the joke and laughing stock of the community.

Menalkas was now a self-respecting American boy with long pants and real shoes and, his courage backed up by these modern garments, he was ready to punch the nose of any of the boys of the neighborhood who reminded him of the days of his curls and Greek togs.

But the blow almost killed Papa Duncan. Mr. Duncan's long hair nearly stood on end. For fifteen long years he had guarded those flowing locks of Menalkas and had tried to keep the boy's thoughts from such inartistic things as pants and shoes. And now all was swept away. Menalkas was emancipated. Never again, the child swore, would he wear long hair or the foolish Greek clothes of the semi-civilized ancients who did not know any better.

It is hard to tell just when Menalkas first began to brood over his wrongs. He never did have a chance to behave or dress like the ordinary boy. The Duncans, Isadora and Raymond, had acquired their Greek ideals years before he was born. They do not believe in modern civilization. They do not like modern customs or art and as for modern clothing—well, it is just hideous. So they dress and endeavor to work and eat and play just like ancient Greeks.

They settled down in Montmartre, where any kind of a cult can find a home and began to preach their gospel of the antique life. At the same time they grafted on the ancient Greek ideal a stern vegetarianism. There is no record that the old Greeks were vegetarians.

So little Menalkas, besides being an ancient Greek, had to be a vegetarian. There is a curious point to the vegetable end of this, as will be seen later.

About the time he was seven it began to get pretty lonely for Menalkas. The colony supported itself by selling hand-woven fabrics, furniture and so on. And Menalkas learned how to work a hand loom and to do other things that would have been useful thirty centuries ago. Wherever the Duncans went out, no matter what the weather might be, they wore the peplum or tunic or chlamys and sandals, and that was all, except now and then a fillet around their brows. It wasn't so bad for the little boy in Montmartre, where they were used to the costume, but when Menalkas was taken down into Paris the gamins would get around him and shout out the French equivalents for "Get your hair cut!" "Sissy!" "Hey, put on your pants!" and other unpleasant remarks.

Nor could he play with other children, because all he knew how to play or was allowed to play were the games of ancient Greece. Nor could he talk to them, because his way of talking and thinking was supposed to conform to that 500 B. C. model!

And all this went on for seven years more.

It is perfectly plain now that Menalkas brooded. How could he help it? While he was being taken home he admitted it. It was the matter of pants that bothered him most, he said. The frequent aspersions cast upon his bare legs got under his skin where the cold winds couldn't.

For seven years Menalkas Duncan, real boy despite his extraordinary parents and aunt, had dimly realized all this. He had concealed these longings, these ambitions, just like any other real boy. And all those years he had watched scores of other boys graduate from pinafores into 'shorts" and out of "shorts" into "long pants," while during all those years he had possessed neither.

It is an axiom of physics that a constant force, confined, will burst forth with a violence in direct ratio to the time of its repression. Menalkas Duncan didn't have a single safety valve, and that is undoubtedly why he blew up completely, wiping out at one stroke all the fifteen years of ancient Greek culture that had been spent on him, just as the volcano wipes out the vineyards around it.

The time of his explosion came a few days ago. It was timed close upon his birthday.

"Go, my son," said his father, "and purchase the makings of a birthday feast. Buy lentils, beans, a basket of some peas—although there is no record of peas having been raised in Attica. But go not near the stalls of the sellers of meat, lest a taint cling to your garments."

Menalkas went forth, a wicker basket that might have marketed in Athens on his arm. It was cold and the wind tossed his hyacinthine locks, flapped his robe and bit at his ankles. It could have been absolute zero and Menalkas would not have felt it. Hot rage and passionate revolt was surging within him. What did they mean—a feast? A feast of beans and greens and peas! What kind of a feast was that?

Revulsion seized him as he looked at the display of the green grocer. The sight of the beans filled him with loathing, the cabbages with hatred. He never wanted to look a vegetable in the face again. And as he stood there, hating them, he heard the old familiar cry:

"Hey, you come out without your pants!"

It was then that Menalkas came to a head. Very well—he wouldn't come out again without 'em! Down with Pericles, Alcibiades, Miltiades, Minerva and the whole goldarned bunch. He wasn't going to be a freak any longer! He cast the Athenian basket at the mocker. He remembered one who had sympathized with him in his troubles, a certain Monsieur Bourdon, who had once been a member of his father's colony, but had gotten sense. He had said that if Menalkas ever wanted to get out of that classic mess he'd help him. He knew his address. Bending his bare head against the wintry blast, Menalkas girded up his chlamys and set forth for Monsieur Bourdon's abode.

Papa Duncan Demonstrating How to Wash Clothes in Graceful, Grecian Manner. The Clothes Are Under His Feet.

M. Bourdon helped him. He admits it.

The first place Menalkas went to after this was a clothing shop, Mr. Bourdon aiding and abetting him.

"Pants!" he said briefly, and stood breathing deeply while the clothier measured him and brought out a neat plaid.

"That'll do," said Menalkas, and hastily drew the trousers over his sandals. Grudgingly he took them off long enough to put on the underwear he was persuaded was necessary. At last shoed and gloved, but not yet hatted, he sought a barber.

"Hair cut," he ordered, laconically.

"How short?" asked the barber.

"Short as it'll go," commanded Menalkas.

When the barber was through and Menalkas regarded himself in the glass he saw an entirely new boy. Gone was that Grecian youth who had been his parents' pride. There peered back at him a good-looking, up-to-date youth with not the least suggestion of the archaic. He bought a felt hat and then sauntered out upon the boulevards. And for the first time in his life nobody paid any notice of him!

It appears that his next call was at a restaurant where for the first time he tasted meat. Not a vegetable would he order.

But in the meantime what of the Duncans? Anxiously they had awaited the boy's return. As the hours went by consternation grew and was registered, as the movie people say, both in classic and unclassic ways. When evening came and still no Menalkas the Paris police were asked to find him.

The next day went by and the police found Menalkas. They carried him home, protesting. When first his parents saw him they did not know him. This defiant, trousered lad with a felt hat on his shorn head could never be their Menalkas! At last they were convinced that he was and loud were the lamentations.

It was some joke on Papa Raymond Duncan all right! He at once made it plain that he did not appreciate it.

The following day Paris was again interested and amused by scores of shrieking posters over all the billboards. These had been printed by the outraged Mr. Duncan, and they warned citizens to "Beware of one Robert Bourdon, who is guilty of receiving hospitality, eating at my table, yet betraying me against all the laws of civilization, as well as of savage modes, by employing all means of alienating my boy's affection and disguising him by cutting off his curly locks and secreting the youth as well as spreading infamies about myself."

This was pretty strong talk. Monsieur Bourdon countered promptly by starting suits against Mr. Duncan "for defamation of character and for personal threats."

"Certainly I helped Menalkas leave home," said Mr. Bourdon. "I did it because his father had never taught him to read or write and persisted in keeping him in featherweight robes in the deepest Winter, causing danger to the boy's health. Besides, Menalkas didn't want to be an ancient Greek. He wanted to be a real boy. I was getting him a job in a factory. When this case comes in court I intend to bring out certain details in regard to Duncan's domestic life that will astonish Paris."

In the meantime Menalkas clings to his trousers, a protesting anachronism in the little bit of ancient Greece his parents have reconstructed on Montmartre.

Japan Not Colonising South Seas War Prize, Says Wood

American Journalist Points Out Mandate Awards Do Not Offer Opportunity For Untold Wealth —No Fortifications Being Made

(Japan Advertiser, March 2)

That the South Sea Islands over which Japan has been granted a mandate do not offer untold and easily obtained wealth for every visitor, as some of the Japanese presumed when the mandate was first given the nation, but that they do offer substantial rewards for sincere and persistent work of development and a place for Japan's crowded population to expand is the opinion of Mr. Junius B. Wood, special correspondent in the Far East of the Chicago Daily News, who returned to Yokohama Sunday after a trip of 47 days duration through the islands on the N.Y.K. steamer Matsuyama Maru.

Mr. Wood, one of the two men who accepted the invitation of the Japanese Government to make a trip through the mandate took one of the two regular steamers on that run at Moji January 10. He made the whole trip on the same steamer and stopped in each port of entry as long as the ship stayed there to discharge and load cargo. He said yesterday that the Japanese steamship men and government and naval officials had been very courteous and helpful to him and had not only shown and explained the points of interest as they saw them, but had been ready to help him in gaining any information he wished.

EXCLUSIVE JAPANESE TRADE

The export of the islands, Mr. Wood said, is confined chiefly to copra, which is exported yearly to the extent of between 5,000 and 6,000 tons; phospate, 4,000 tons, and sugar, about 300 tons. Sugar is a comparatively new crop and its production is in the experimental stage in a number of the islands. The trade in the islands is mostly in the hands of the Japanese firm, Nanyo Boyeki Kaisha, which did business in the islands before Germany had lost them. A large number of companies sprang up, Mr. Wood said, when Japan first gained control of the islands, but many of the men interested in them were under the impression that a pot of gold awaited any and every comer in exchange for a red handkerchief, so that now the field has so narrowed that only the one large concern and a few smaller ones remain.

The exclusive hold over the trade of the island is held against foreign competition by the Japanese firm largely through the Japanese control of the shipping situation there. The two subsidized N.Y.K. steamers Matsuyama Maru and Chefoo Maru make the run regularly, touching each trip at eight or nine ports, and making Moji alternately on the outgoing and return voyage. The Matsuyama Maru, 3,000 tons, touches at Moji after leaving Yokchama; makes three stops in the Marianas before reaching Truk, the headquarters island for the mandate; then goes to the east wing of the big group, touching at Ponape, Kussaie, Jabor (Jaluit) and Wotje, returning to Truk and north to Yokohama. The Chefco Maru leaves Yokohama direct for the islands and goes west from Truk to the West Carolines, making the island of Anguar, where the most of the phosphate is mined, and returning by way of Truk and Moji. This gives Truk and the islands north a monthly service and each wing of the group a bi-monthly service.

Outside of these two steamers the only vessels permitted to trade in the islands, according to Mr. Wood, are a 10-ton American schooner owned by Atkins Kroll and Co. of San Francisco, which is permitted to go from Guam to the island of Saipan 60 miles distant, and the Maono, an Australian steamer of 300 tons, which is permitted to trade with the Marshal Islands. The American vessel is doing only a small import business, as there is a plant disease on Saipan now and no copra is being exported. The Australian steamer brings merchandise and takes copra from the Marshals to the island of Suwa in the Fiji Islands.

FEW WOMEN ON ISLANDS

The islands over which Japan was granted the mandate includes the formerly German islands in the South Seas north of the Equator. They number some 800, with a total area of 970 square miles. One is 13 miles across and another has 65 square miles; so outside of the 11 chief islands, they average less than a square mile each. Only the larger ones are habitable and in many cases only the edge and perhaps a valley or two of them.

The natives lead an easy life, gathering cocoanuts for trade and raising bread fruit and taro for food, but, the correspondent thinks, the islands are not an especially attractive place for settlers. The total Japanese population in the islands at present is about 3,000 half of whom live on the island, Saipan, the second largest in the mandate and the chief one of the Marianas. Of the 3,000 Japanese less than 500 are women, so that it does not appear that colonisation is progressing rapidly. Another sign that the Japanese are not anxious to make permanent homes in the islands the correspondent noticed was that many more Japanese applied for passage to Japan than could be accommodated by the Matsuyama Maru. One of the reasons that they choose Saipan rather than some other island in most cases, he thinks, is that Saipan is close to Japan.

In Truk and the neighboring islands there are 600 Japanese. While there, the journalist was entertained by Admiral Nozaki, who is in charge of the naval administration. The terms of the mandate prohibit the fortification of the islands and the only signs of fortification that the newspaper man saw, he stated with a smile, was an ancient gun which looked as if it had long ago been removed from a pirate or whaling vessel and which was now "hors de combat." He said he thought no battleships were stationed in the islands.

The cocoanut groves formerly German owned went to the Japanese Government, to be managed by the authorities or let out to Japanese. Other groves are owned by natives or foreigners, the latter having holdings in the Marshals. One interesting resident of Kussaie Island is Captain John V. Milander, an American, Swede by birth, who cruised through the islands when in the United States Navy and settled at Kussaie 40 years ago, taking a native wife. He is said now to own about 40,000 cocoanut trees. He is a very religious man, Mr. Wood said. Two nephews are now with him; one went there 11 years ago and one on the same ship with Mr. Wood.

The ship of the one time famous Billy Hayes brought another old foreign resident, Mr. Jack Sandbery, to the Marshals 43 years ago.

Mr. Wood said that the second language of the islands is English, the first being the native jargons, different on each island. English is widely spoken and understood, he said, as a result of the 70 years of American missionary activity there and the visits in former years of American whalers and American and British trading vessels. There are four American protestant missionaries in the Marshal Islands now, two women at Kusaie and one woman and a man at other points. There are more than 100 native pastors and teachers taught by the Americans. In the past there have been both German and Spanish missionaries and since Japan secured the mandate over the islands both Christian and Buddhist missionaries have been sent there. There is one Japanese Christian mission worker in Truk and one in Ponape at present. Japanese schools are now being established on the principal islands and the Japanese language is being taught.

Although the islands are thought by Mr. Wood to offer a good place for some of Japan's population to spread to, he said that it takes money and several years of effort to get started in a substantial way. Only a few of these who have gone to the islands have gone for colonisation in the sense that they have taken up farms and settled there. They have gone as representatives of the Nanyo Boyeki Kaisha or some other firm or in Government service, to return after two or three years or less there. Japanese labor has also been imported to the islands, although native labor is available. The natives are forced to unload the ships when they arrive in port, that being classed as essential public work. The mandate terms, according to a London cable, permits forced labor only for that class of work and then only for adequate pay. Adequate pay is given the South Sea Islands by the Japanese, Mr. Wood said.

SINN FEIN SAYS IT SANK THE K-5

Dispatch Purporting To Come From Dublin Announces Attack By Irish Craft

(New York Times)

New York, Feb. 4.—The British submarine K-5, which sank in the English Channel off Land's End two weeks ago with six officers and fifty-one men, was destroyed by Irish seacraft, according to The Sinn Feiner, a de Valera organ with a circulation among Irish adherents in the city. A dispatch purporting to have come from Dublin and published in The Sinn Feiner yesterday, credits the sinking of the submarine to "an electrically controlled projectile" invented by an Irish engineer. This is the dispatch:

SPECIAL TO THE SINN FEINER

Dublin: Ireland has struck her first blow against the British Navy. On Jan. 20, Irish sea craft operating near the spot where Archbishop Mannix was seized last year, sighted the enemy submarine K-5 and destroyed it. The submarine, one of the largest and most powerful in the British fleet, was blown to pieces. How this victory was accomplished it is not permissible to tell at this time other than to say that a new weapon somewhat in the nature of an electrically controlled projectile, recently invented by an Irish engineer, made it possible.

"The sinking of the K-5 was its first practical test. The British Army of Occupation here continues its campaign of frightfulness. Nevertheless, talk of peace continues, but the prospect of an early cessation of hostilities appears very remote."

The story was printed with a large black headline, "Irish Sink British Submarine," on the first page of the paper, which is edited by Patrick Walsh, and has among its "Advisory and Contributing Board of Editors the Rev. John H. Dooley, D. D., the Rev. Timothy Shanley, assistant pastor of the Church of St. Benedict The Moor; Major Michael A. Kelly of the old 69th Infantry, Jeremiah A. O'Leary, Lism Mellowes and others.

Editorially The Sinn Feiner comments on the sinking of the K-5 as follows:

"The news from Ireland indicates that the Irish Republican Army is carrying on. Reports from all over Ireland show attacks upon British motor lorries, police barracks, mails and even open fighting on a much larger scale than usual. The news that a British submarine has been sunk by a secret device the Irish have perfected comes with some surprise. The British admit loss of the submarine, but carefully conceal the cause of its sinking.

"'It went down,' they say, 'and never arose. The cause is a mystery.' It is no longer a mystery as to who did the trick. The Irish themselves announce it. * * * The British are at sea as to the means of the latest and greatest Irish success. They shall remain at sea and perhaps while there shall meet with more similar disasters.

"The Irish Republic lives."

According to dispatches from London many theories concerning the disappearance of the submarine K-5 were advanced. One was to the effect that an internal explosion might have caused the sinking, another that the K-5 was not fitted to endure the open sea. It was one of the largest and most complicated craft of that type in existence and needed especially well-trained crews, it was pointed out. Salvage is considered impossible at the great depth of 500 feet, where the craft is supposed to lie. The K-5 was the fourth vessel of the K class to meet with disaster.

Captured Satchel Told Von Kluck's Plan

French Learned Whole German Scheme In Time To Foil Paris Drive

London, Jan. 21.—The story of the lucky capture of a German officer's satchel which revealed von Kluck's plans to the French Staff at the crisis of the first German rush on Paris was told by Lieut. Col. Fagalde, one of the French Military Attaches here, while lecturing before the Institut Francais du Royaume Uni.

During the great retreat the Lieutenant Colonel was at Jonchery on Sept. 1, when there was brought to him a large satchel, which had been taken from the body of a German officer, killed in his automobile by a French patrol. It contained, in addition to food and clothing, blood-stained documents, which showed that he had been to von Kluck's headquarters for instruction and was on his way back.

Tucked away under the food and clothing was a map on which were traced all the movements to be undertaken after Sept. 1 by von Kluck's army. The position of every column was plainly marked, with their heads and rearguards, and the hours of departure and arrival at their destinations.

It was then discovered that von Kluck's plan, already known to the French staff, of marching into the Valley of the Meaue, had been changed into a direct march on Paris, to begin on the morning of Sept. 2.

Lieut. Col. Fagalde at once telephoned this information to general headquarters and forwarded the map and documents by motor to the same destination. Apparently there is little doubt that to this discovery was mainly due the success of Gallieni's attack on von Kluck's flank, which led up to the victory of the Marne.

DEFECTIVE DIGESTION

How It May Be Overcome

One of the direct causes of ill-health is indigestion, and this arises most often from eating unsuitable diet, and bolting food without sufficient mastication. Thus food, instead of being quickly digested and converted into nourishing health-giving blood, becomes a fermenting mass, giving rise to flatulence and forming poisons.

Headaches, depression, lack of appetite, and the torture of dyspepsia are signs that the stomach has lost tone and is being wrongly dieted. Keep your digestion perfect and eat wholesome food and you will find the way to be well. Sufferers from indigestion require new blood to cure this painful disorder, and by taking Dr. Williams' pink pills they will satisfy all the needs of the blood, nerves and stomach. These pills sharpen the appetite, brighten the spirits, banish depression and headaches, and establish good health on a secure foundation of rich red blood.

The case of Mr. George Taylor, of 128 Thugnee Street, Wellington, New Zealand, proves the value of the Dr. Williams' treatment for indigestion. He says:

"When living in Sydney I began to suffer with indigestion. After a time I could eat very little owing to the bad pain I knew would follow, and in consequence I got very run down and weak. The complaint grew worse, and I tried many remedies but couldn't get relief. I couldn't take an interest in anything. At times my head would ache and the room seemed to be spinning round and round, and I had to clutch things for support. I used to go without food to relieve myself of the dreadful feeling in the stomach. My sleep at night was very short, and I used to lie awake and wait for the daylight to come. One day an acquaintance asked me if I had tried Dr. Williams' pink pills. I thought I would try them. At the end of the first bottle my appetite returned to me. I was delighted, and continued taking them till I felt well and fit again. Now I am the picture of health, and never have indigestion after eating."

The beneficial efficacy of Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people on the digestion is very quick and well-marked. This can be proved by starting a course of the pills now. They can be bought of medicine vendors everywhere, or direct and post free, one bottle for $1.50, six bottles for $8. from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and deterioration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—

(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly

(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.

(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

How Constance Talmadge's Romance Surprised Everybody

The Runaway Marriage of the Movie Star That Ran Away So Far It Took Her Right Out of Being an American Girl and Made Her a Subject of the King of Greece.

Mr. John Pialoglou, the Greek Bridegroom, Born in Turkey, Who Married Miss Constance Talmadge.

Mrs. Pialoglou, Who Entered the Gretna Green Rectory as an American and Came Out a Greek.

The Profile of Constance Talmadge, Now Mrs. Pialoglou.

Three Talmadge Girls—Constance, Norma and Natalie.

Photo INTERNATIONAL

For he might have been a Russian,
A Greek or Turk or Prussian,
Or perhaps I-tal-i-an,
But in spite of all temptations
To belong to other nations
He remains an Englishman.

SO runs the funny song in "Pinafore" which humorously commends the hero for sticking to his own nationality.

But Constance Talmadge, the well-known movie star, has done differently. Twenty-two-year-old Miss Talmadge has just married a Greek—Constance Talmadge of the movies is now Mrs. John Pialoglou. In fact, Mr. Pialoglou came very near being a Turk, for he was born in Constantinople, Turkey, and he lived there most of his twenty-eight years.

The name is pronounced Pee-a-log-loo.

A wife belongs to the nationality of her husband. So Mrs. Constance Talmadge Pialoglou is a Greek woman! Of course, just such things happen in the movies, but how did it happen in real life that the pretty, versatile, popular young actress lost her heart to this Greek?

It is an odd and interesting romance.

Although but twenty-two, and considered by some—among them the Greek Mr. Pialoglou—to be the fairest of the three Talmadge sisters, she has had many suitors. Carefully chaperoned by a vigilant and affectionately solicitous mother, she led a joyous life apart from the toilsome immurement of her hours in the studio. She loved to dance, and her mother accompanied her to dancing parties given by her friends and the larger affairs of the Sixty Club.

At all these dances "Connie," as those who knew her well instinctively called her, had an army of would-be dancing partners. Her card filled as if by magic.

Irving Berlin was one whose name appeared often on the card. The popular song-writer, who rose from a lowly station—an East Side boy whose name has become known wherever popular English music is played and sung—used to stand near the door of the ballroom.

"Look at Irving," said the Broadway celebrities in the room. "He watches for Connie Talmadge as a cat watches for a mouse."

Mr. Berlin had long been what was deemed a disconsolate widower. The wife of his youth and poverty had died early, leaving him, it was thought, inconsolable. Certainly he mourned her long and with genuine grief. But sparkling Connie Talmadge, Broadway said, caused him once more to smile. "She is giving him back his youth," said Broadway with an approving nod of its grizzled head, bejewelled by millions of incandescents.

Broadway loves its Irving Berlin. It hoped that a new happiness was about to crown the life of the little musician with the mop of thick black hair and the eyes in whose depths a kind of genius glows. But Broadway counted without two important factors. One was the consent of Mrs. Talmadge. The Talmadge girls admit the mother rule. A mother so devoted, they agree, should receive the homage of confidence and obedience. She approved the match by which Norma Talmadge became Mrs. Joseph Schenck, but she disapproved of Irving Berlin as a would-be son-in-law.

Why?

There appears the second factor which Broadway forgot. Irving Berlin has lots of money—far more than Mr. Pialoglou—but he is of the stuff of the old-fashioned husband. He did not endorse the modern feministic movement. He felt that the career led too far from the home, and he believed, from the heart, that it stunted the exercise of the old-fashioned womanly qualities of love of home and love of children. If he ever married again his wife would leave the screen or stage or any other public post she adorned, because he was amply able to take care of her, and because his songs had profited him a million or two or three. At all events, he did not want strange eyes, perhaps vulgar eyes, to feast upon the loveliness of the woman who would be the loveliest on earth to him.

Often he enunciated this matrimonial platform. Whenever she heard it Mrs. Talmadge frowned. For Mrs. Talmadge—gentle, low voiced, kindly as an intense modernist—believes every individual should develop his or her talent to the uttermost. She, too, declared her creed. Marriage was the way of the heart and of flesh. Everyone should marry, but the joining of two lives should not mean the sacrifice of nor assimilation of one.

So Irving Berlin's suit never blossomed. 'Twas nipped, as 'twere, at its budding. He accepted the role of family friend and semi-father to the girl who but for views so completely at variance might have become his wife.

Then appeared Clifton Webb among the matrimonial possibilities. Clifton Webb is the graceful young dancer who is more like the late Vernon Castle than is any other living dancer; at least, Vernon Castle's widow, now Mrs. Irene Castle Treman, has so said. But Mr. Webb's career was in the shaping. He was young. The world was before him. Mrs. Talmadge desired no dancer for her son-in-law. That suit, too, was frostbitten by early parental disapprobation.

A young motion picture magnate appeared, persisted, and vanished from among the would-be husbands of Constance Talmadge. He, it was said, found no favor in the eyes of the much-sought maid herself.

Entered then John Pialoglou. He entered by way of the Sixty Club. That club, which is composed of the elect of the stage and screen, is responsible for many ardent flirtations. It has fostered several matches. After Billie Burke and Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., had met and fallen in love at that club it was called by the flippant "Cupid's Own."

Mr. Pialoglou came in, it was said, "with an air." Not that he intended to enter the club in any but his habitual fashion. It was his habit to enter a room and leave it, to greet and make his adieu with the assured manner of one born to command. He had the background of wealth. His father was a rich exporter and importer of tobacco. He had business houses in Constantinople and Athens.

John Pialoglou, who entered so easily the brilliant ballroom and made his way from table to table, greeting bevies of beauties and their distinguished escorts, was backgrounded also by culture. He had received a thorough education through famous tutors. He spoke fluently a half-dozen languages. Above all, in the inquisitive, beautiful eyes focussed upon him he had that extreme deference which is the soul of manner.

One of the first beauties before whom he bowed from the waist down and heels together at the Sixty Club was Constance Talmadge. She smiled her engaging smile at him and he invited her to dance.

"He danced beautifully," she said. "So beautifully that—that"—— The sentence remained for two years unfinished. John Pialoglou did not immediately enter the lists with the large array of her knights. He was different, being a stranger in the wrong this or speak the right words at the wrong moment. The supreme dead of every lover—the dread of being ridiculous—held him back.

Besides, there were deterrents to his courship. He must at least wait until his English was better.

Meanwhile in the Talmadge family there were deterrents.

There were frequent jests directed at Connie about her "Turk." For it developed early in their acquaintance that Mr. Pialoglou had been born in Constantinople, though his parents were Greeks.

"Born in Turkey. Of course, he's a Turk!" said one of the family, smiling at the rest. "If you're born in America of French parents aren't you American? Of course you are."

They ignored the treaty made between Greece and Turkey half a century ago whereby the children of Greeks, though born on Turkish soil, would retain the nationality, as they retained the religion, of their parents, and the fact that the population of Turkey is almost as largely foreign as native.

"Throw a stone at a Turk and you hit a Greek," is a proverb in Constantinople.

But repeat a thing often enough and you will believe it, or hear it often enough and you will lend it a more or less credulous ear.

The Turkish tale constituted a serious impediment to the young man's suit. While his English improved the Turks grew increasingly unpopular in America. Nevertheless, the young man remained here. His father wrote him and his brother George, asking whether they were lonely in the new land and whether they preferred to leave the business in other hands and come home. John replied with emphasis that he did not feel lonely and did not wish to leave the business in other hands and come home. Perhaps he did not quite clearly know why he so inclined to American soil, but he stayed on, and the sign, "Pialoglou Tobacco Company," remained on the door of the suite of offices in Liberty street.

Since Constance Talmadge returned from Europe early last Autumn the young Greek pressed his suit with greater vigor. The pair were seen oftener together. When one appeared at the Sixty Club the other was sure to be there. The magic letter "P" seemed to lead all the rest on "the youngest Talmadge girl's" card.

Early in December she finished the sentence she had two years ago begun:

"He dances beautifully. He has danced into my heart."

There came up, of course, the question of Mr. Pialoglue's nationality. Miss Constance is an ardent American. Mr. Pialoglou's ancestry is pure Greek.

"If you were born in Turkey," asked Miss Talmadge, "doesn't that make you a Turk? And won't that make me a Turkess or something?"

"Oh, no, no," reasoned her lover. "It would have, of course, if there wasn't a treaty between Turkey and Greece that makes me a Greek subject even though I was born and live in Turkey."

"You're sure you won't become an American not even for me?" cajoled she.

And then Mr. Pialoglou, although not in rhyme, repeated in effect the immortal sentiment from "Pinafore," quoted at the beginning of this story.

And so, of course, Miss Constance had to make up her mind that if she wanted to marry Mr. Pialoglou she would have to become a Greek.

Finally she and Dorothy Gish determined to elope! Not far, only to New York's Gretna Green, Greenwich, Conn. They would escape there the publicity of securing a license in that clearing house of information, the twenty-four-story arch of the Municipal Building, neighbor of the Brooklyn Bridge. And there may have been other reasons, but one was potent. She and Dorothy Gish had been chums ever since they could remember.

"Let's get married and tell the folks afterward," said Constance. Or was it Dorothy?

At all events Constance Talmadge and her Greek cavalier, who speaks English in a softer than an American voice, but still with a slight accent, and Dorothy Gish and James Rennie, the good looking young Canadian stage and screen hero, motored to Greenwich together on December 22 and were married. Each pair witnessed the ceremony for the other. Each bride's wedding certificate is a souvenir of the friendship of the other. Miss Talmadge and her betrothed were the first pair married. When the justice of the peace had spoken the few necessary words ending with "I pronounce you man and wife," they stepped back and acted as witnesses for their friends.

They motored back to New York, sought Mrs. Talmadge and Mrs. Gish and told them the news.

"We have saved you all the fuss and bother of a wedding," they said.

Constance Talmadge will continue in her motion picture work, at least for the present. Her husband says he is "broad enough to wish her to gratify her ambition and loving enough to wish her to have her way."

This is the story of how Constance Talmadge, famous at twenty-two, talented and beautiful, has ceased to be an American. By her marriage she became a Greek. Until the laws are amended, as the recently made voters say they will be, an American woman automatically becomes a native of the same country as her husband when she marries.

Mr. John Pialoglou has not applied for naturalization papers.

He says he will not!

His father and mother live in Athens. The family interests and property are in Greece and Turkey. He has no thought of becoming an American.

Unless his lovely bride can exert her power over him to attain that object, or until the laws are amended to make an American girl always an American, she is a Greek and subject of Greece, which does not disturb her in the least. Just now she is in the mood "All for love—and nationality well lost."

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand write as follows in their exchange circular for week ending yesterday.

Exchange.—The London price of silver at 31⅛d. shows a drop of 1⅛d. since our last circular. Our rate for T.T. on London has followed with a drop of 1½d. to 2s. 11d. During the last few days a premium of over official rates has been offering to the extent of 1d. to 2d. the result of some competitive selling of gold T.T. among the banks against shipments of silver to India, both from Shanghai and America. We understand that shipments of silver are also moving to India from London and it would appear doubtful whether that country can absorb the amounts now offering from these three centers. Our exchange market closes uncertain with still 1½d. premium offering, i.e. 3s. 0½d. for T.T. on London and 59 for gold dollars. Our stock of silver is down owing to shipments of silver to India reported as Tls. 2,400,000.

OIL

American Producers & Refiners Inc.

Offer you

AN INVESTMENT OF RARE MERIT

combining with it

A speculative element of unlimited possibilities.

Because they have an assured supply of crude oil. Because the oil is high in gasoline content. Because they own their own refinery and drilling machinery. Because the oil is encountered at a depth of less than 1000 feet and consequent drilling costs are low. Because they have a market waiting for the refined product. And because of many other natural advantages those who are familiar with the LaBarge-Piney Oil Fields of Wyoming consider them to be America's most valuable oil territory; and the American Producers & Refiners Inc. believe they are offering an investment which will yield a permanent income

Would it interest you to have a small sum of money invested in a manufacturing enterprise and to know that every dollar may multiply itself forty or fifty times within a few months.

Wyoming is now one of the six leading States in oil production and is believed to be destined to become the leader. Almost every county in the State is oil producing. The LaBarge-Piney fields, where our lands are situated, are proven lands and produce the highest grade of crude of any fields in America.

The business of the American Producers & Refiners Inc. is primarily refining of crude oil and will consist in taking oil from our own and adjoining wells and making it into gasoline and the other products and by-products of the crude oil. The supply of the crude is assured for many years to come and the market for the refined product is a local one. Lincoln County in which our property is located, and the surrounding territory will absorb the entire output of our refinery. The stock of the company may be worth many times its par value within a year after it is issued and this due entirely to the refinery and not depending for one dollar on the land values held by Company. If the land proves up equally with the lands surrounding it, as we naturally expect it will there will be almost no limit to the possibilities.

A study of the following table will give some idea of the profits of the refining business. The estimate of earnings is based on a refinery similar to ours, having a 300 barrel daily capacity, 42 gals. per barrel, the oil sold for local consumption in and around the district where it is produced.

LAND HOLDINGS.

This company holds under lease 1933 acres of land. Forty acres of this land is proven oil land and has been appraised by experts as worth one million dollars. Drilling on this forty will start in the early spring. It is surrounded by producing wells from which a paraffine base oil, of high gasoline content, is obtained. The oil sands have a thickness of over 100 feet and are reached at a depth of between 578 and 1000 feet. It is estimated that this forty acres alone when properly drilled will supply our refinery for thirty years to come. The balance of the land has been selected by careful reference to the anticlinal structure of the field which is now considered by leading oil geologists of the country as the greatest potential oil field in America. The company plans to develop these land as rapidly as possible and run through its refinery the product of its own wells. The companys holdings will be added to from time to time as opportunity permits and such lands will be acquired as may be considered, by its officers, as sound and worthy of development.

POSSIBILITIES FROM A SPECULATIVE STANDPOINT

During the coming summer many drilling rigs will be working to prove the value of our extensive holdings. Eminent geologists, who have studied the structure and formations, do not hesitate to say that the whole structure, forty five miles long and fourteen miles wide, is oil bearing. They know that it produces oil at one end of the structure and they also know that it is unbroken for forty-five miles. If it proves up as the geologists claim that it will, it will outrival any oil discovery ever made in America. The development period will be very rapid, and the coming summer will tell all that is to be known. If the lands are all proven to be oil bearing they should make every dollar invested in this company worth $50.00 or more. If they prove to be an absolute failure and entirely dry the stockholders will still have the profits of the refining business and from the lands already developed sufficient oil is assured for thirty years to come.

Some idea of the immense profits which may be realized can be gained by a glance at the following table which shows what the investment of one hundred dollars actually did realize in the following companies:

$100 in Union Oil Company increased to	„	„	$150,000.00

A New American Secretary Of State

IN his choice of Charles E. Hughes as Secretary of State in the new administration, President Harding not only made no mistake but fulfilled to the highest possible extent the expectations of the American public. Both President and people are to be felicitated on Secretary Hughes' acceptance of the portfolio.

The head of the new cabinet but narrowly missed being president himself in 1916. He resigned his place in the Supreme Court of the United States, at the call of his party, in order to make the race against President Wilson that year. He was defeated by a narrow margin and largely because of a schism in the Republican Party of California. As an administrator and executive he has proved his mettle. He made a fine record as Governor of New York, being elected for two terms. Before that he had made a nation-wide reputation by reason of the skill and thoroughness of his investigations of the gas and insurance scandals for the Stevens and Armstrong commissions.

It is most important to know that he is a friend of the League of Nations, especially significant in view of President Harding's decision to send a high commission to London with the object of finding out whether "the Allies are willing to agree to the inclusion of the United States in an association of nations on terms which would definitely exclude any obligation on the part of the United States to guarantee the peace of Europe."

Elihu Root probably will head the commission. He also is a friend of the League of Nations. As in the case of President Harding and Mr. Hughes he refused and still refuses to commit the United States to all the obligations involved in acceptance of the Convenant and Treaty as brought back from Paris by ex-President Wilson.

As to Mr. Hughes' position regarding the League which is of vital interest in view of the new crisis in Europe, there is this to be said, that while he criticised various sections of the Covenant he always favored the general plan. On July 24, 1919, when the great debate was on in the Senate he wrote Senator Hale as follows:

"There is a plain need for a League of Nation. * * * There is merit enough in the proposed plan to make it desirable to secure it if proper safe-guards can be obtained."

In his campaign speeches of 1920, while Mr. Hughes made a strong technical attack upon Article X., he did not conceal his generally favorable disposition toward the League. Speaking in New Haven on October 23, after Mr. Root had spoken in New York, Mr. Hughes said:

"It is not likely to be difficult, as Mr. Root has said—and no one knows better than he—to secure the consent of other nations to the modifications and amendments of the Covenant which we desire. We are not antagonising the aspiration for a society of free nations to promote peace."

With Root and his commission in London, assisted by Col. George Harvey, the new American Ambassador, urging the acceptance by Europe of the American flat limiting our responsibilities in European affairs, and with Hughes as Secretary of State directing them, success in the negotiations would seem to be assured. Europe wants help from America but not interference. And while it is difficult to extend the help in any direction without invsting from another quarter the charge of interference—well, that poses the problem. And Hughes, Root and Harvey can solve it if it is solvable.

U. S. And The Bolsheviki

Secretary Colby's Summary Of The Government's Attitude Toward Russian Rulers

BY WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD

In an interview given to a reporter of La Nacion, one of South America's leading newspapers, Secretary Bainbridge Colby discussed recently in Buenos Aires the attitude hitherto taken by the United States on the subject of the recognition of Soviet Russia. He was asked if there had been any change in the American position and replied that there had been no modification of it. The statement follows:

The attitude of the United States was fully set forth in a formal note addressed to the Italian Ambassador at Washington on Aug. 10 last, and there has been no departure whatever from the position as outlined.

"The United States has thus far refused to accord political recognition to the Moscow Government, and my opinion is that no recognition will be given Russia until it works its way to a Government, regardless of its internal structure or form, which recognises the duties of a modern State toward other nations.

"The present Government is sustained by the most wanton cruelty and rigorous oppression and frankly founded upon duplicity as a principle. It does not profess to be in any degree a representative Government. It is avowed and unblushing tyranny—an inconsiderable minority sustained by force and relying upon indiscriminate oppression as the means of self-perpetuation.

"We have taken the position that we are unable to extend formal recognition to the present rulers of Russia, or admit their right to hold that position. This decision has not been taken because we conceive that we have any right to dictate, or even suggest, to Russia how she shall order her political and economic life. It does not represent a judgment rendered against a particular political policy or form of government. Accepting in its full and most literate meaning President Wilson's declaration that the right of self-perpetuation belongs to all nations, no matter how small or how great, it would never occur to us to challenge the right of the Russian people to have any kind of Government they may choose, so long as they respect our rights. We had not the slightest thought of discriminating against Sweden when that country chose for itself a Socialist Government. Our refusal to recognise the Soviet Government was due in the first place to the fact that it was itself the denial of self-determination to the Russian people, being a rule by men who violently usurped power and destroyed the democratic organ of the Russian people's Government. Even more, however, it was due to the fact that the Soviet authorities announced that they would not be bound in any manner by their most solemn pledges, freely entered into, and the further fact that by their actions, in the case of several friendly nations, they have lived up to that announcement. There can be no useful and harmonious cooperation toward the end of placing civilisation upon a sound basis with such men.

"We have taken the position that we cannot regard as final certain dispositions of important territorial rights, and acknowledge the full independent sovereignty of a number of States carved out of what was the Russian Empire. Here, again, we have not departed from that principle of the right of nations to self-determination which was laid down by President Wilson and is concurred in by both the great political parties of our country. Our position is that changes and adjustments so vitally important to Russia, as well as to the nationalities concerned, must—for reasons of political expediency no less than of fundamental morality—be the outcome of mutual discussion and agreement. Russia must be protected in her interest. She is entitled to her day in court. We feel that we are in morals bound to exercise, in common with other nations, a certain voluntary trusteeship for a disabled friend and former ally. In no sense can our policy be rightly interpreted as an adverse verdict upon the claims of independence put forward by the nationalities in question. That is a matter which we have not felt called upon to deal with. We have simply said that no final determination of those claims should be made until Russia, fully restored, is able to participate in the settlement.

"I have said that this moral principle is valid also for reasons of political expediency. It seems fairly obvious that any arrangements made whereby large and important areas are alienated from Russia without her consent, in pursuance of agreements entered into without her knowledge or participation, will be challenged by Russia in that near future when she has recovered her strength. Thus, again, will the whole world be brought face to face with the perils of war. It is for this reason, mainly, that we have opposed the forcible dismemberment of Russia.

"There is another point which, as it seems to me, is worthy of much greater attention at the hands of the world's statesmen than it has received. I refer to the manner in which Bolshevism in Russia has been strengthened by the sense of outrage felt by many Russian thinkers. The attempt to dismember Russia has caused a great many of her sons and daughters to stifle their hatred of Bolshevism and to accept the defender of the national patrimony. The bruised national sentiments of the Russian people have caused the very best minds in Russia to lend their support to the Bolsheviki, because they believed the latter to be, for the time being, the one aggressive force seeking to prevent the dismemberment of their fatherland."

Europe's Great Drama Of Peace

Ferrero, Famous Italian Historian, Discusses Merits And Defects Of Agreement At Versailles—Detractors Continue To Bombard Document

BY GUGLIELMO FERRERO
(Famous Italian Historian)

Rome, Jan. 11.—There was once a time when treaties used to be engraved on bronze and marble. Then they were written on parchment. Are we arriving to the point, in these days, of copying them out on tissue paper? It would seem so, to judge by the fate of the Treaties of Versailles and of Sevres. The ink with which they were written was barely dry when there was talk of making the treaties over again. How is this sudden repentance over a thing that should be irrevocable to be explained? It is an instance that is unique in history.

The Treaty of Versailles has been and is the mark for numberless accusations. If we are to believe its detractors, who are as thick as flies in Europe, it is an iniquitous oppressive treaty, dictated by hate. These are exaggerations.

There are defects in the treaty, but there are also many virtues; it exceeds in certain directions, but in others it is mild and fair. On the whole, Europe might perhaps be able to compensate its defects and virtues by a wise and just application of its clauses, if it had not in truth one serious defect, of which no one talks but which is much more dangerous than all the defects that have been denounced. And that defect is that we do not know precisely whether this treaty really exists or not; whether it is a genuine and living treaty or a piece of useless paper, in spite of all the ratifications.

Some say it is a genuine treaty and some say it isn't; every one is impatiently awaiting for the facts to solve all doubts, but the facts do not appear to be in any hurry to arrive.

The good and the bad parts of the treaty alike rest on an "uncertainty," which does not seem very susceptible of being cleared up. And thus Europe is gradually becoming possessed by a strange sense of anxiety and does not feel sure whether or not she made the great Peace Treaty which is to put an end to the greatest war in history.

STUDY THE TREATY

The affair is so strange that it is worth while making an effort to understand it properly. A piece of writing paper does not become a working treaty, a sacred pledge, an imperative law among the peoples except by virtue of their spontaneous or compulsory consent.

If a treaty is not to remain a dead letter, if, in fact, it is to be duly observed, either the vanquished must acknowledge it and consider themselves bound to observe it either as a question of honor or as a question of self-respect, or the conqueror must be so much stronger than the vanquished that the latter would not dare to rebel and submit to the observance of the treaty, even though its injustice chafe him to the soul.

The Treaty of Versailles does not respond to either the one or the other of these conditions today. Rightly or wrongly, the Germans are convinced that at Versailles they had to submit to a new "pact of Brennus."

Like the French after the Treaty of Frankfort, they curse the treaty as iniquitous and consider that they are bound to observe it only in so far as they are compelled to by force. It is the task of force, therefore, to make them respect the treaty.

But does this force exist? The whole of Europe is in suspense in this moment, under the doubt. Germany was vanquished in the world's war by a coalition, which is already in part dissolved and in part loosened. It is impossible to say today what effective forces are ready to impose the treaty on recalcitrant Germany tomorrow. Could France alone? Or France and Belgium? Or France and England and Belgium together? Nor is it easier to measure with any security the forces that Germany might have at disposal tomorrow, if she wanted to try and tear up the treaty. Nobody knows that, not even Germany.

Some say that Germany has been prostrated for centuries; some can see her, within a few years' time, more powerful and more menacing than before.

UNCERTAINTY IS EVIL

This uncertainty is the secret evil that is destroying Europe. Germany would like to make sure that the coalition by which the treaty was compiled is no longer in existence, and that she herself is strong enough to refuse at least the execution of the most burdensome clauses; but the facts give her merely the encouragement of some not very secure hopes, and withhold the certainty she desires.

France, in her turn, would like to be sure that the coalition with which she won the war will never desert her; and she would like to be sure, too, that even if the coalition should be dissolved she could still impose the treaty with the help of her own forces only. She would like to have these certainties, but she has not got them, because for her also the signs of the times are confused and uncertain.

The other Powers abandon themselves blindly to this uncertainty, passively awaiting events, without understanding or doing anything to clear matters, and allowing the formal existence of the coalition to continue while at the same time several of them have, in fact, abandoned it. The coalition, therefore, and consequently the force that ought to impose the treaty is and is not; now it seems that it exists, and in a moment it vanishes like smoke; and the treaty which was compiled with so much trouble exists and does not exist, it is or is not according as there appears or does not appear to be in existence a force which is adequate to impose it.

Germany is preparing to execute the less burdensome pledges of the treaty, one by one, but she is leaving everything to the last possible moment, trying to gain time and hoping that in the end the treaty will prove to be nothing but a piece of paper as far as regards the part that has not been put into execution.

France, on the other hand, is making every effort to keep the coalition held together, and, fearing that it will end by dissolving, she is trying to hasten the execution of the treaty as much as possible; but all the time she is dreading to find herself at the end with a treaty in her hands that is for the most part a dead letter.

THE SEVRES TREATY

The case of the treaty of Sevres is even more simple. There are no doubts on this question. The force for the imposing of the treaty has never existed; and therefore the treaty itself has never existed except in the imagination of those who compiled it.

England, France and Greece had a beautiful dream one day—to divide between them the spoils of Turkey, vanquished in the World's War, and of Russia, dismembered by the revolution; to possess themselves of Mesopotamia, Palestine, Syria, Constantinople and the Black Sea.

It was not sufficient, however, to have conquered a Germany army on the Rhine in order to get possession of these territories; it was necessary to send an army to Asia and make a new war.

Neither France nor England could do this, however, and then Lloyd George had the idea of coming to an understanding with Venizelos, Greece, was to send the army into Asia, with Smyrna and Thrace as her prizes.

The combination is on the point of failure, however, for the Greek people will not hear of this war, and in their hatred of it they have overturned Venizelos and they want to call back King Constantine. And now, if the only force that Europe could count upon to impose the treaty should be wanting, what will the treaty of Sevres be but a piece of paper?

During the war, and after the armictice, if often happened that I saw some persons who genuinely believed themselves to be political "realists" smile incredulously when I explained the ideas that I am putting forward in these writings.

"The world doesn't change," they said. "In this war, as in all others, the conquerors will try in the end to enrich themselves at the expense of the vanquished, in obedience to their own egoism. It is a dream to suppose that the great Powers that have survived the war, friends and enemies, can ever come to an understanding with America in an attempt at a general reordering of the affairs of Europe, beginning with the limitation of armaments."

PROPHECIES ARE REALISED

And, unfortunately, these skeptical prophecies have come to pass. The victors have made peace just as if this were one of the usual wars, each one looking after his own immediate interests and imposing them to the extent of his forces. But there has come to pass also the prophecy or forecast that I have opposed to that skepticism as often as I have been able: the fact, that is, that the peace imposed would not prove to be peace and would in the end be a delusion for the very egoism itself of the victors by whom it had been dictated. As they would not set Europe in order again on the principle of solidarity accepted by victors and vanquished, the victors have not been able either to give to France he guarantees she asked for nor to facilitate the necessary restoration of the countries devastated by the war; and in the end they have compiled treaties whose observance would have to be imposed by a force which often does not exist and more often still is a nebulous quantity.

For this is the defect not only of the Treaty of Versailles and of Sevres, but to a greater or less extent of all the peace treaties concluded up to the present. They have been written on tissue paper. We shall see next time.

The Family Finances

BY LORETTO C. LYNCH

(An Acknowledged Authority on All Matters Pertaining to Household Management)

Already many housewives are finding it necessary to readjust family finances in order to sanely meet the lowering of wages. One good thing about the whole situation is the fact that prices have come down noticeably. But just what is a sane readjustment?

Folks who study budgets tell us that about 25 percent of the income should be expended for rent. During the war and immediately thereafter the housing shortage became so serious that we just had to forget about percentages and take a home somewhere, no matter what the price.

But on the eve of the return to more normal conditions the housewife who has the welfare of her family close to heart will begin to do some studying. For, if she continues to pay more rent than her lessened income permits, in some way the family suffers.

Sometimes this suffering comes because the milk bill must be trimmed to fit in. Sometimes the paying of an out-of-proportion rent causes the husband to go without the new warm underwear so necessary to his health in his out-door occupation.

Labor, in the home, as elsewhere, is still expensive and the home that offers many of the labor-saving devices is sometimes the cheaper in the long run. And where the budget is so proportioned that little is left for operating expenses, the little things of every day life become a source of constant worry, especially where the home-maker has a sufficient knowledge of sanitary science to make her desire quick disposal of waste and prompt removal of dust and dirt.

The smaller the income, the larger the proportion of it must be spent on food in order to maintain a proper degree of physical efficiency. Experiment, keeping all food bills for a month until you can buy to satisfy the not-too-exacting demands of the family palate and after several months strike an average as the minimum.

On a small income for a family consisting of parents and three children, from forty to fifty dollars a month, unless one has a garden or is particularly fortunately located as to the markets, will be required.

Clothing is quite as necessary as food. It maintains the body temperature by conserving the heat which the food furnishes. Health is the main factor in efficiency, and health is certainly preserved by conserving the energy and protecting the body from sudden changes. The instinct for color and display is a primitive one, but the suitability of clothing should always receive first consideration.

No figures or percentages can be given for clothing. For we all know of the woman who at the cost of a dollar or two can make over some relative's coat for a youngster which looks superior in style and is admirably warm. A knowledge of textiles and sewing is a valuable asset to the average home-maker.

But, whatever your income, do try the budget scheme if only for a year. You will never want to go back to the hit-and-miss spending which is all too prevalent in many American homes.

The Rhyming Optimist

(The Popular Man)

BY ALINE MICHAELIS

I've seen many a man in my life's lengthy span and I've wondered a bit on the way why it was that so few of the fellows I knew were generally voted O. K. For I've met but one chap who could call it a snap to make every one think he was grand; so I asked him "Tell me what's the great recipe for making folks eat from your hand?" "At a big spelling bee I'd not rank one, two, three," confided this hero of mine. "I'll be candid and say I'm an ignorant jay, and there's only one post where I shine. I'll not venture to speak of my Latin or Greek, because as a linguist I'm bad; should I try to debate upon matters of state any wise chap would think I was mad. But I'll tell you, oh, boy, it is really a joy to know in one line I excel; though I fall down where most of the clever men boast, there is one stunt I know I do well. I admit I'm uncouth and I'm far past my youth, but these are the least of my cares, for I certainly know how to hoe my own row and not meddle in others' affairs. Yes, I may be a mutt, sticking right in a rut, I may never put on any airs; but I've got this straight tip, so I win every trip: I don't bother with others' affairs! For the people won't care what's the shade of your hair or whether you're versed in cube root, if you know how to mind your own business you'll find them surprisingly easy to suit." Oh, it listened so well that I readily fell for his nice little peach of a plan, but, say, is it hard? Well, I'm telling you, pard, I know only one popular man.

A New Note In Smart Frocks

BY RITA STUYVESANT

With the advent of Spring comes a delightful new fabric for afternoon gowns in crepe. It resembles crepe de chine, but is somewhat heavier, and drapes itself beautifully. There are some exquisite frocks fashioned of this lovely stuff in all the wanted shades, grey, black, copper, navy and bisque.

The loveliness and youthfulness that characterise a frock for a young girl are emphasised in a demure dress of silver grey. Simple, loose chemise lines with side tunics attached to the hips, a trifle below the normal waistline, describe the style. An abundance of tiny self-covered buttons decorate the frock, and a broad girdle of Chinese blue crepe lends not a little charm.

Another youthful frock of light grey crepe is tucked in quite an unexpected manner. The short full skirt shows two wide tucks, below groups of small tucks finished with a row of hemstitching. Groups of small tucks and hemstitching also trim the blouse. Orchid gros-grain ribbon is used for the girdle.

Black crepe with a notable use of fine jet beads combine into a lovely frock of slim grace. Loose side panels are plentifully beaded and lined with bright orange crepe in a most effective manner. The bead work is repeated on the blouse, and there is a bit of beading to finish the very short sleeves. And when one adds a broad girdle of orange crepe deftly knotted at the side, and dropping almost to the hem, she may rest assured that she is gowned quite correctly.

Distinction and charm are reflected in a dress of copper crepe, beautifully embroidered in copper thread, of a darker shade. This smart frock, of delightfully juvenile lines, consists of an accordion pleated skirt hung from a muslin sleeveless slip. Over this, one wears a loose Russian blouse that slips on over the head. A square neck and short set-in sleeves characterise the blouse.

One's Company Two's Crowd

The mistress beamed patronisingly on the maid-servant.

"I'm going to get you another chair for the kitchen, Norah," she said.

"Sure, I don't need it, ma'am," responded Norah.

"But you have company some evenings, don't you, Norah" the mistress queried in surprise.

"Only gentlemen, ma'am," Norah replied, dropping her eyes.

A Living And A Life

BY DR. WM. A. McKEEVER
Professor in the University of Kansas and a Well-Known Educator

"I make a living on the farm and a life in the schoolroom," was the remark of a typical Pennsylvania farmer-teacher.

Here we find a family man and the head of a household, varying in age from twenty-five to seventy, tilling intensively his little farm of ten to sixty acres and teaching the district school. He is an honest, hard working and patient soul, seeming to possess a real interest in the soil culture and a genuine passion for child culture.

Once per year he goes over to the county seat and spends a full week at the institute hearing the best educational lecturers that money can buy and attending evenings a four-number lyceum course. In addition to this he reads every year two or three professional books on teaching. This farmer teacher is the acknowledged intellectual head of his community.

From sheer stress of circumstances I think it will dawn upon this country soon that the present-day and widespread youthful banditry is traceable to our common city-boy idleness and our surcharged city atmosphere of social excitement.

With noting to do but pursue lightly a short-hour course in schoolroom instruction and with long evenings and week-end periods for happy amusement and indulgence of his appetites, the trend of the city youth is naturally degenerating.

But in the Pennsylvania rural school, typically presided over by a middle-aged farmer-teacher, the situation is radically different in the respect that every boy has plenty to do and learns to work with his hands. In the midst of this sturdy industrial atmosphere, pregnant with the smell of the soil, the honesty of the farm, there is resident all the elements of a life. Play, work, sociability and religion, the four chief ingredients of a well-balanced growing personality are all here within easy reach.

Under the present strain of political, social and economic excitement the big city seems absolutely helpless in any reasonable effort to supply in normal amount and well-guarded arrangements the foregoing four-fold programme of training. But the country school district, as illustrated in hundreds of instances in Pennsylvania, has all these matters within easy control and possible isolation.

The question is, will it rise to the full level of its possibilities. The big drive now on to enforce for the first time a 100 percent attendance record, and with the powerful machinery of a new law and a statewide constabulary to back it—this, I believe, will tend to make the Keystone State for the next year or two a most conspicuous battleground for juvenile integrity.

Conclude Evidence In Robbery Case

Judgment Due Shortly On Men Participating In $10,000 Raid

The two men arrested following the $10,000 robbery committed at the Ching Yuen Dah bank, 36 Avenue Edward VII on February 2, will appear again before the Mixed Court today when the testimony will be concluded. A third prisoner committed suicide by hanging in his cell at Hongkew police station several weeks ago.

The two men on trial have admitted complicity and state that the robbery was committed by two different gangs working together, one of which was led by a former cook of the bank's proprietor. There were about ten men in all, most of them armed with pistols, who forced the employes to open two safes, obtaining $2,000 in silver from one and a large quantity of jewelry from the other besides a box containing valuable documents, including fangtans for land. One of the accused was arrested as he was leaving the scene of the robbery and was found to be possessed of a loaded Colt's automatic pistol. The other two were arrested by a Chinese detective as they were quarreling over a division of the spoils in a teashop on Haining Road. On information given by the latter the police went to a hut near the Rifle Range and dug up a tin can containing a number of rouble notes. One of these last two men stated that he received Roubles 1,000, $15 Mex. and four gold hairpins as his share of the loot.

Mr. K. E. Newman, appearing for the bank proprietor, intimated that he would draw up a despatch to be sent to all the yamens informing them that the fangtans had been stolen and asking the issue of new deeds. He asked that the Magistrate's seal be placed upon these despatches. The Assessor stated that the case would come up counsel might draw up the paper. The accused will be remanded two weeks.

Most of the shops were prepared to carry out the order yesterday but some have petitioned the authorities for a further period of grace.
